BOYISH DESIRE TO WATCH CARS ENDS IN DEATH

Robert Murphy, St. Peter's Pupil, Fatally Injured By Freight Train.

HELPED BAKERY DRIVER

Wanders to Park Avenue East Tracks While Waiting For Truck to Return.

Victim of a boyish desire to watch the trains go by, in the hope that he would see some army trucks or other military equipment being shipped by freight, 11-year-old Robert Murphy was killed late yesterday when he was struck by a Pennsylvania freight train 200 feet south of the Park avenue east underpass.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Murphy of 153 Arthur avenue, and a sixth grade student at St. Peter's school, died instantly of a broken neck, according to the report of Coroner L. B. McCullough.

In accordance with a frequent practice, Robert went along after school yesterday with Frank V. Stimmler, bakery truck driver. When they got to the corner of Marshall avenue and Bentley street, the boy started down Marshall with a loaf of bread to be delivered on that street. Stimmler told him to wait at the corner of Marshall and Bushnell streets; that he would pick him up there.

The trip would not have taken Robert within a block of the Pennsylvania tracks. For some reason, however, he went directly to the tracks, and there he was struck by a freight train.

His father offered the only clue as to the boy's act in going near the trains. Robert was "terribly interested" in anything to do with Army supplies, the father said, and probably went to the tracks in the hope he would see some motor equipment or

LEWIS, MURRAY PART COMPANY

Early Showdown Looming on Subject of Relations Between CIO-UMW.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, and President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial organizations have parted ways under circumstances that promise to bring an early showdown on the whole subject of CIO-UMW relations.

The break in their long friendship seemed to have become final yesterday at the UMW executive board meeting when Lewis referred to Murray as "my former friend" and said he resented being called "a Jap."

Murray, who is a vice president of the UMW, sprang to his feet, waved his arms and shouted "I never called you a Jap, John."

Lewis referred to a remark by Murray last January that Lewis' AFL-CIO peace proposal was a "Pearl Harbor stab in the back."

"That makes me a Jap," Lewis was said to have replied.

When Murray tried to interrupt further, several miners shouted "sit down." One unidentified miner booed Murray. Murray, his voice choking with emotion, said "all right if that

Police Check New Series of Thefts In Stores, Homes

Topped off by the shoplifting of two women's dresses from a downtown store, another wave of petty thievery hit Mansfield yesterday, police reports showed today.

Bicycles, garden hose and cash were other items reported stolen in addition to a 1936 automobile, valued at $350, belonging to Jacob W. Lowman, 66 East Third street.

The Lowman car was taken from a garage at 54 North Adams street, where entrance had been gained by breaking a window, the owner said.

Samilson's store at 73 North Main street reported that two dresses had been taken by a woman shoplifter. The woman visited the store yesterday morning.

UNITED AIR ASSAULT ON EUROPE SEEN

Head of U. S. Supply Division Arrives In London To Speed Planning.

LAND BLOW TO FOLLOW

Separate Operation of Plane Fleets Reported Accepted By Americans, RAF.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell arrived here today to round out the United States military mission conferring with British war chiefs, and London commentators expressed belief a united air assault was planned to blast the way for a future Allied landing on the German-occupied continental coast.

General Somervell heads the United States army's supply division, which is charged with handling the thousands of tons of food, clothing and munitions needed to help any major expeditionary force in the field.

He is an assistant chief of staff, in charge of "G-4," the supply division.

Brigadier Generals Leroy Lutes, Charles P. Gross and William C. Lee accompanied him.

"Plans for a combined Anglo-American attack on the Axis powers are being discussed," the Daily Telegraph said. "It can confidently be predicted that one outcome will be a great intensification of the air attack on Germany from the west."

The Daily Mail said a liaison system "which both the United States and the RAF have stated to be "wholly acceptable" has been drawn up," providing for separate operation of the air fleets, but co-ordination in strategy such as the selection of bombing targets.

The Daily Express said "the Americans have numbers of dive-bombers," which many military experts regard as essential to furnish close support for any ground operations in modern war. Britain has few such planes.

The United States officers conferred with the corresponding officers in Britain's air, sea and land services.

General Somervell's arrival completed the United States military

SAFE AT HOME

Boy, 3, Wanders Mile Away; Police Find Him.

Three-year-old Marvin Bond was back home safe and sound today after a case of wanderlust had carried his small feet about a mile away and had given his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bond, 527 North Mulberry street, a bad scare.

Marvin was located at the A. & P. market on Bowman street by police yesterday afternoon about two hours after his parents first discovered he was missing. The police department was notified after the child's parents had devoted an hour and a half to the search.

The dark-haired little tot told officers his name was "Marvin" but that was all the information he could give them. He was walking around in the market when found.

Hitler, Duce Seek Victory Formula

Those old Axis cronies, Adolf Hitler, third from left, and Benito Mussolini, left, are pictured above as they got together at Salzburg, Austria, April 29, to try to figure a way to get out of the tangle they have gotten into. Poring over war maps with them are General Alfred Jodl, second from left, and Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, right, of the German high command. Faced with Russian resistance and counter-attacks in the east and with growing Allied strength in the west, Der Fuehrer and Il Duce are trying desperately to win before it is too late.

Mayor Writes His Own Story Of Trip--And We Write Ours

Mayor W. J. Locke, who insists that the News-Journal continually misquotes him, turned reporter today:

He issued a written statement (perhaps dictated but not read or edited) concerning a trip he and other city officials made to Columbus yesterday.

Here's his story:

"In compliance with the telegram from J. S. Deutschle, Deputy Director of the Office of Civilian Defense, city officials met yesterday in the Office of the Fire Marshall, Ray R. Gill, and checked over the needs of Mansfield and tentative requests were drawn up covering the equipment for medical teams, casualty stations, and auxiliary fire fighting equipment which will be allocated, and delivery may be expected within the next sixty days. Delivery, however, cannot be made until the personnel of defense committees have been completely set up in Mansfield.

"Mr. Fred Wolff, Fire Chief Seeburger, Mayor Locke, and Electrician Earnest Adams attended the meeting.

This information will be turned over to Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch."

At the risk of being accused again of misquoting the mayor, the News-Journal, following customary journalistic practice of giving full title to city officials, as well as using their full names and trying to spell all names correctly, points out the following:

The Mr. Fred Wolff referred to is Service-Safety Director Fred Wolff; Fire Chief Seeburger's initials are C. J.; the mayor's initials are W. J.; City Electrician Adams' name is spelled "Ernest" instead of "Earnest"; marshal is spelled with one "l," and that presumably the information referred to is being turned over to Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch because the judge is also Mansfield director of civilian defense.

Of course, the mayor didn't say these things in his story—the News-Journal says them, and just

'OUTSTANDING'

William Hassler, 12, Called Best School Patrolman.

SHELBY—William (Bill) Hassler, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hassler, of Shelby, today had been named as the outstanding school boy patrolman in Shelby.

Hassler, who is in the sixth grade, was elected to the post by the vote of the school faculty, students and others.

He was captain of the Shelby Schoolboy patrol this school term.

PURGES AGENTS

Mexico Seizes Axis Men on Eve of War Declaration.

MEXICO CITY—(U.P.)—Mexico was purging enemy agents today, the eve of a formal declaration of war against Germany, Italy and Japan for torpedoing her merchant ships.

Fifty-four Axis citizens, including some of the most dangerous agents in Mexico, were rolling toward the United States in two heavily-guarded train coaches. They included 21 Germans, 23 Japanese and 10 Italians, and were the first Axis subjects to be sent from the country since Mexico broke relations with the Axis last Dec. 11, and Axis diplomatic staffs were handed their passports.

Congress meets tomorrow to consider President Manuel Avila Camacho's demands for a declaration of war emergency powers to prosecute it.

HOUSE TO VOTE ON PAY BOOST

Showdown Expected on Rate of Increase; Rep. Rankin Threatens Roll Call.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The issue of whether soldiers and sailors should be paid $50 or $42 a month comes to a showdown vote in the house today.

Action will be taken on a senate-house conference committee agreement on a $42 base pay instead of the $50 per month approved by the lower chamber a week ago.

Facing administration leaders who favor the $42 figure was the parliamentary problem of preventing Rep. Rankin (D.), Miss., from carrying out his announced determination to force a roll call vote and send the bill back to conference.

The house passed the measure with the Rankin amendment providing $50 for the lowest grade and $54 for first class privates and second class seamen by a roll call vote of 359 to 1. Rankin was confident that the members would not reverse themselves on a record vote.

The bill increases pay of the lowest seven grades of enlisted men and of second lieutenants and ensigns and also boosts rental and other allowances for officers.

Meantime, the senate military affairs committee put before the senate a family allotment bill which revises the draft act to vest broad authority in the selective

Food Production Check to Start On County Farms

Joining the Ohio Agricultural Adjustment administration set-up in a state-wide survey of the wartime food production activities, Richland county AAA committeemen will meet at 8 p. m. Thursday at headquarters in Mansfield to launch a check-up of the probable 1942 production on county farms.

County AAA Chafrman Guy Taylor, who called the meeting here, said township AAA committeemen would be asked to assist with the survey which, for the present, will deal only with wheat and corn acreage.

Taylor said notices will be mailed to county farmers from county AAA headquarters, asking the farmers to cooperate with their township committeemen in the crop check-up.

The survey, coming several weeks before harvest, will enable the federal government to determine whether the "food-for-freedom" production goals are being met by farmers, said Elmer Kruse, state AAA chairman.

Goals for grain, meat, milk, and egg production in the county were set up early in the spring and farmers were asked to raise more of all kinds of food materials to make more available during the war.

Drive Germans Back In South; Battle Spreads

Nazis Renew Effort to Bomb Murmansk Lose Six Planes; Russians Enlarge Pocket In Izyum-Barenkova Sector of Ukraine.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—The Red army, fighting with its back to a river, has brought the German offensive in the Izyum-Barenkova area to a standstill in the most important sector and has gained new ground in immediate counter-attacks, the Russians reported today.

Simultaneously the Russian forces about 80 miles northward continued their persistent pounding of the Germans who are clinging to new positions on the Kharkov front.

While the deadly conflict in the Ukraine thus progressed after two furious weeks, the arctic end of the 2,000-mile front also quickened to life.

The Germans renewed efforts to bomb Murmansk and fresh Nazi troops were concentrating in the northern sectors.

Red Fleet, Soviet navy paper, said six German planes were downed and six damaged in air battles over the approaches to Murmansk and that land artillery of the Soviet northern fleet blasted 11 underground shelters and other quarters where Nazi soldiers were massing.

Red Star, the army paper, telling of the Ukrainian fighting, said the Russians were enlarging a pocket along the river bend where they stopped the Germans in the Izyum-Barenkova sector.

Russian infantry, with artillery and tank support, has taken the slope of a hill dominating the sector and now are fighting at the gates of a village several miles from their starting point, Red Star said.

Two German counter-attacks have failed to halt this movement, it added.

In many sectors of the Kharkov front tank encounters continue, with the Germans sending out groups of 20 to 30 machines and the Russians meeting them with equal numbers, so that the Germans are holding their positions only at "immense" losses, the army organ declared.

A two-day battle has resulted in repulse of German efforts to drive a wedge into the Russian lines near Kharkov, while in another nearby spot the Germans failed to recapture a village in a two-day combat with tanks, the report continued.

While these dispatches indicated that the Ukraine conflict raged on, others suggested that it was a breathing spell by comparison with the titantic struggle of the past two weeks in which the Russians pressed hard on Kharkov and blocked German counter-blows against their left flank.

Soviet cavalrymen, on a raid covering about 40 miles far behind the southern front lines, killed some 2,100 Germans, the government announced.

A northwestern front detachment was credited with killing 300 of an SS (Elite) division in two days of fighting for an important height.

Fighting for favorable positions continued both around Kharkov, a steel center occupied by the Germans a full seven months ago, and in the Izyum-Barenkova sec-

THREAT: Tojo Hints New Blow At Australia, Pledges Axis Aid

(By Associated Press)

Japan's Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo sounded a new threat to Australia today, asserting boastfully that "the naval forces in defense of Australia have disappeared, with nothing standing now to defend that country before the onslaught of the imperial Japanese forces."

Evidently a "fishing expedition" in quest of information, Gen. Tojo's repetition of Japan's claim of victory in the Coral sea battle—discredited by Allied accounts—was accompanied by a renewed pledge of Japanese support for the Axis.

"Japan will do her utmost to contribute her share as the partner of Germany and Italy," he told the Japanese parliament, in the presence of Emperor Hirohito.

But, as if to dispel the idea that Japan would help Germany by attacking Russia, Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo carefully explained:

"Relations between Japan and the Soviet Union have undergone no change even after the outbreak of war in greater East Asia.

"Enemy countries will, I presume, intensify their efforts to alienate Japan and the Soviet Union, but there is no chance for such intrigues to bear fruit so long as the Soviet Union firmly maintains the attitude mentioned."

In addition to the threat against Australia, Gen. Tojo warned India that "as long as British and American troops remain in India, Japan is inflexibly determined to annihilate them."

He said Australia was "now helplessly expecting Japan's attack after the battle in the Coral sea wiped away naval units put up for the defense of Australia . . ."

While Japan's war leaders thus boasted of future conquests, Allied

ATTACK: Rommel Army Starts New Offensive In North Africa

BULLETIN

CAIRO—(AP)—The fight for position in the Libyan no man's land burst into a sudden Axis bid for the initiative today, with a strong armored force sweeping deep around British positions to Bir Hacheim, 40 miles south of Ain El Gazala, where battle was joined by British tank forces.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The Germans in North Africa have started "an offensive of some sort" but it is too early to judge its size, a military commentator declared today as Axis tank columns and infantry moved eastward toward the main British positions, which have been newly strengthened with American-made cruiser tanks.

Diplomatic sources said there were increasing signs that the Axis was mounting a formidable land and naval move in the Mediterranean area.

The move in Libya was the first reported in any strength since Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel made a tentative thrust with three columns April 8. Finding the British positions much stronger than expected, the Germans then held their positions while awaiting supplies and reinforcements ferried across the Mediterranean under cover of air attacks on Malta.

Rommel was estimated to have about 125,000 German and Italian troops, including three armored

NOT SO FAST!

Think Hitler's Licked, Air Raid Wardens Fail to Train.

CLEVELAND—(INS)—Belief that "Hitler has been licked" led today to depletion in the ranks of air raid wardens, County Defense Director William A. Stinchcomb said.

About 1,800 wardens out of 3,500 who have completed training have indicated they wished to be dropped from the Cleveland civilian defense organization. Stinchcomb said that of 17,000 persons assigned to air raid warden classes, only 11,000 reported for training.

There wasn't much cheer in the weather forecast today for farmers and the rest of us who are ready for sunshine and warmer weather.

The weatherman's gloomy prediction was: "Light rain and cooler this afternoon and tonight."

A SUGGESTION TO MOTHERS OF DRAFTEES

It would be a big favor to some young man or woman if you would rent out your son's vacant room. There is a growing shortage of desirable furnished rooms, and many young people are living in overcrowded places.

It is an easy matter to select a refined young person who will be a pleasant addition to the household.

Second Special News-Journal Edition June 14 to Honor County Service Men

IN ACCORDANCE with the announcement made in the "Thumbs Up" edition of the News-Journal on May 17, which was dedicated to servicemen from Mansfield, a similar edition will be published on June 14 to accord the same recognition to men in uniform from the rest of Richland county. June 14 is Flag day, and this will be known as the "Flag Day" edition.

Photographs and information concerning men from the county—outside of Mansfield—who are in the army, navy, marine corps, or coast guard, will be collected in the next 10 days. Similar data will be assembled on girls from the county in army or navy nursing duty.

Contributions of material for this edition will be welcome. For the convenience of the sender, coupons will be published in the News-Journal—the first appears today—and these must accompany all photographs sent in to the Service Editor, News-Journal, Mansfield, O.

In cases where a photograph of the individual has appeared in the News-Journal in recent months, the picture will be published again in the June 14 issue if the engraving is still on file. But the pictures on file cannot be used unless a coupon is sent in, providing the latest information on the serviceman.

The deadline for sending in material is June 8. The photographs must be sharp and distinct, and can't be published if the subject is indistinct or too small. Likewise, the pictures should be in black and white, not tinted, for color photographs reproduce poorly in black and white.

Further details on the edition will be found in the announcement appearing on Page 13 of the News-Journal today. If you live in Richland county, outside of Mansfield, clip out the coupon today and send it in along with the best picture you have of your serviceman.

And in the space for essential information of the coupon, write the most interesting points you can think of—your boy's age, whether he took part in athletics at school, in musical organizations, or anything else which would be of interest. (Complete addresses of servicemen may not be published, under censorship regulations.) And write legibly, to avoid possibility of error.

SOVIET ATTACKS GAIN GROUND IN UKRAINE SECTOR

Drive Germans Back in South as Air Fight Flares In Murmansk Region.

tor 80 miles to the south, but it was evidently less severe than at the outset of the spring campaign.

Russian troops were officially reported to have consolidated their positions in the Kharkov area and "fought stubborn engagements with enemy tanks and infantry" in the Izyum-Barenkova area overnight.

The Soviet information bureau's midnight summary contained but one reference to active hostilities aground.

This was a report that Soviet lines guarding Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's southern wing in the Kharkov drive again had fought off diversionary thrusts by the invasion command of Lieut. Gen. Viktor von Schwedler.

"In the Izyum-Barenkova direction," it said, "our troops repelled violent enemy tank and artillery attacks."

Possibly referring to the same action, dispatches from the front said Nazi parachutists had been picked off before they could land and that fire from Russian small arms caused three of Adolf Hitler's troop-carrying transport planes to crash.

In contrast to an announcement that Nazi tanks had been wrecked at the rate of 80 daily in the first five days of the Kharkov offensive, there was mention of only 25 destroyed or damaged Monday and all these were credited to Russian aerial squadrons.

Eleven German planes were reported shot down that day, against a loss of eight Soviet aircraft. These also were below previous averages.

Italians Ready To Seize Nice, Corsica

LONDON — (INS) — Italian troops today were reported poised on the French frontier in preparation for an imminent move to occupy Nice and the island of Corsica.

Reports received by way of Switzerland said Rome diplomatic circles claim that Italy has the full support of Germany in pressing its claims to the French territory. Italy demanded Nice, Corsica, and Tunis as its price for peace with France.

The Italians, it was said, are entitled to fulfillment of their demands, with Germany's blessings, since Italy is giving much aid to the Reich on the Russian front.

London heard that 300,000 Italian troops are massed in the provinces of Piedmont and Liguria in northwest Italy adjacent to the French frontier.

U. S. Silent On Destroyer Attack

WASHINGTON — Officials maintained complete silence today over any developments following the torpedoing of the U. S. destroyer Blakely not far from Martinique and the arrival of the damaged ship in the Martinique port of Fort de France.

The ship reached port under her own power and the incident seemed likely to create more complications in the controversy between the United States, Vichy and Berlin over the negotiations now under way between an American naval delegation and Martinique's high commissioner concerning the island's status.

Ten members of the crew of the damaged Blakeley were reported missing and six were injured. The injured men were hospitalized, but the question arose whether the French authorities might put a time limit on the Blakeley's stay in a neutral harbor.

Washington sources said disabled belligerent vessels were usually allowed time enough in neutral ports for emergency repairs.

FRENCH DISRUPT FASCIST PARADE

Allied Sympathizers Break Up Demonstration at Beziers.

BERN, Switzerland—(AP)—A parade of French Fascists at Beziers in unoccupied France was broken up today by Allied sympathizers in a street battle which involved about 1,500 persons, it was reported, as political discussions at Vichy centered on possible adjustment of Italy's extensive territorial demands.

Information from the occupied zone said the fight at Beziers, a town in southern France near the coast west of Marseille, was ended by police intervention.

The paraders were carrying anti-British and anti-Churchill placards when jeers from the people on the sidewalks started the fighting.

PLEAD GUILTY

Two Sentenced to OSR For Attack on Sheriff.

WEST UNION—(AP)—Two men who pleaded guilty to armed robbery and assault with intent to kill Sheriff Grimes Morgan of Adams county were sentenced to Mansfield reformatory yesterday. They were Lloyd Wilson, 24, Dunkirk, Ind., and Olen Stewart, 24, Tipton, Ind.

They were given one to 15 years for assault and 10 to 15 years on the armed robbery charge, the sentences to run consecutively.

MRS. HILTABIDDLE, PIONEER MANSFIELDER, DIES AT AGE 95

Mrs. Mary Hildreth Hiltabiddle, 95, believed to be the oldest resident of Mansfield who was born in the city, died early today at her home, 411 Tremont street, following a lingering illness.

An inveterate baseball fan, she was a close student of the game for years. Until her illness prevented, she read baseball news regularly and listened to broadcasts of games daily.

She had perhaps the best store of recollections of early Mansfield possessed by any resident of the city, and recounted many interesting observations of Mansfield when it had a shopping district only two blocks long on Main street. Her father was Dr. Joseph Hildreth, a pioneer physician and attorney, who came to Mansfield in 1818 when he was 18.

MRS. MARY HILTABIDDLE

She was born on March 31, 1847, in a house which stood where the Blymyer Inn later was located. When she was two years old the family moved into a log cabin near Glessner avenue, on a part of a 50-acre tract of land which her father had purchased as a park for his home, and which ran from Wood street to Vennum avenue, along Marion. The family lived in the log cabin while the big brick family residence, which was to be one of the city's showplaces, was being built. The house stood at the corner of Carpenter road and Marion avenue, and was for years the Reid Carpenter home.

The piano Dr. Hildreth purchased for his new home was believed to be the first one in Mansfield.

Mrs. Hiltabiddle was a member of the First Christian church. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Daisy Freir of Mansfield, and Mrs. C. E. Lysinger of Shelby, and one son, Guy T. Hiltabiddle of Akron. Also surviving are eight grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren, and five great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Finefrock funeral home at 3:30 p. m. Friday, with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger of the First Christian church officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

other Army material being carried by a passing freight.

Stimmler made his other regular deliveries after dropping off the boy, then doubled back to Marshall and Bushnell. It was then he saw a crowd gathered along the tracks. He ran to the scene, and found that Robert had been struck.

Lester Jerels, who resides at 298 Park avenue east, gave the first report of the accident when he saw what looked like a body lying beside the tracks while he was sweeping his front porch. He summoned an ambulance which rushed the boy to Mansfield General hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

The boy's injuries consisted of a broken neck and broken leg. His body was not crushed or badly cut, according to Dr. McCullough. Time of the accident was set at approximately 6 p. m.

The train crew—A. J. Poffenbaugh, engineer, and Charles Kellerman, conductor, had their first knowledge of the accident when they saw a loaf of bread fly through the air. Looking back, they saw the boy lying beside the track, and they stopped the train immediately.

Robert was one of six children of Mr. and Mrs. Murphy. An elder brother, James, 23, is in the Marine Corps, and is stationed in the Panama Canal zone. There are three sisters, Margaret, Helen, and Marjorie Ann, and another brother, Richard.

The body was taken to the Geiger funeral home. Funeral services will be conducted at St. Peter's Catholic church at 8 a. m. Friday, with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield Catholic cemetery.

service administration to order exemptions of family men.

Family allowances in the senate bill are: $28 per month for a wife but without a child; $40 for a wife and one child, plus $10 for each additional child, $20 for a motherless child; $30 for two motherless children, with $10 for each additional child. Aid also is provided for dependent blood relatives.

Draft of 18-19 Age Group Considered

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The administration considered today a call to congress to draft younger fighting blood—youths of 18 to 20—into the army.

There was no indication of how soon a decision might be made, but President Roosevelt disclosed at his press conference late yesterday that he would confer shortly with Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, on whether to ask for the necessary change in the selective service act.

The present law exempts those under 20 from conscription. However, the 18-20 year category is to register June 30 under the nation's manpower inventory.

The 18 and 19-year-old were subject to draft in closing weeks of the World war and the army today is in the midst of a drive for enlistments from those age groups.

Opposition to drafting of under-20 youths has arisen among senators. Senator Hill (D.-Ala.) and Senator Shipstead (R.-Minn.) are among those who have criticized the proposal.

For the present, men with "genuine dependency" have been told they will be reasonably safe from a draft call in 1942. This assurance was given by Hershey Monday in an address to members of the Harvard forum at Cambridge, Mass. The selective service director said there was a sufficient pool of manpower available to fill this year's needs without dipping into the 3-A's—those with dependents.

The senate military committee yesterday recommended that class 3 include only two groups: registrants with wives or children or wives and children, and those with purely financial dependents after amounts payable under proposed dependency allotments are considered.

The committee held that these two groups should not be touched until all 1-A men have been inducted.

hopes it won't be accused of "misquoting" for so doing.

If the mayor will pardon our taking the liberty, here's the story as we'd have reported it ourselves:

Equipment for casualty stations and auxiliary fire-fighting units for Mansfield's civilian defense organization will be forthcoming within 60 days, city officials today said they were told by Ohio civilian defense officials and State Fire Marshal Ray R. Gill in Columbus yesterday.

Delivery of this equipment cannot be made, however, until the personnel of Mansfield's civilian defense committees has been completely set up, Mayor W. J. Locke said. Personnel of the city's air raid protection units now is being selected.

Attending the meeting in Columbus yesterday with Locke were Service-Safety Director Fred Wolff, Fire Chief C. J. Seeburger, and City Electrician Ernest Adams. They went to the state capital in response to a telegram from J. S. Deutschle, deputy director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

Meeting at Gill's office, they checked over Mansfield's needs and tentative requests were presented for equipment for medical teams, casualty stations, and auxiliary fire-fighting equipment, Locke said. The information obtained at the meeting will be turned over to Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, chairman of Mansfield's civilian defense council.

Officials who attended the meeting declined to elaborate on the type of equipment the city may expect to receive.

fighting men scored new successes against the invaders on far-flung land and sky fronts.

On China's east coasts, in the critical Chekiang province theater, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies were reported to have started an offensive in an attempt to hamstring Japanese columns storming at the gates of Kinhwa, Chekiang provisional capital.

Chinese dispatches said Gen. Chiang's troops were attacking in the Hangchow - Kashing - Wuhing sector 100 miles below Shanghai, behind the base from which the Japanese drive against Kinhwa was launched.

Far to the west, in the Burma-China war zone, the Chinese position along the Burma road was reported sharply improved as Chinese troops continued to push the invaders back from the Salween river and American "Flying Tigers" blasted Japanese bases repeatedly without meeting opposition.

American airmen bombed the Japanese three times within 48 hours, inflicting great damage on the enemy's advanced bases.

Latest information indicated that the 150,000 Japanese troops in Burma may now be planning an invasion of India rather than a drive up the Burma road into China.

On the Australian front, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that Allied fliers attacking over New Guinea destroyed three of 16 Japanese Zero planes.

Japs Concentrate Forces On Border

CHUNGKING—(UP)—Japan is concentrating large mechanized forces on the Burma-China frontier, possibly for a lightning drive through Yunnan province toward Kunming to coincide with intensified offensives in Chekiang and Fukien provinces, American Volunteer pilots revealed today.

This warning followed official disclosure that these "Flying Tigers" had silenced at least six more enemy artillery batteries along the west bank of the Salween river 60 miles inside China in Yunnan province.

Returning from a reconnaissance flight over the enemy-occupied portion of Yunnan, the American airmen said they sighted "large mechanized units" at Wanting, Burmese border town.

HEADS CHAMBER

John Hurst Elected By Junior Group at Shelby.

SHELBY — John Hursh was elected as president of the Shelby Junior Chamber of Commerce to succeed Winfield Hancock during a business session Tuesday night at the Shelby Country club.

Sixty-five members and guests were present for the party that followed the business meeting.

Other officers named were John Blank, first vice president; Harold Heitzman, second vice president; Kenneth Swank, secretary; George Kilgore, treasurer; Robert Heyde, Emmett Morgan and Henry Miller; two-year directors; and Hal Culbertson, Richard Pry and Paul Woodruff, one year directors.

The party was in charge of committees headed by Jack Kennedy, jr., and Joseph Mayner. A buffet lunch was served during the evening by Mr. and Mrs. Wade Bricker.

The liquors, 18,000 bottles, were the entire lot of the ill-fated former French liner Normandie, which now lies on its side at her Hudson river pier.

The spirits were auctioned off to pay internal revenue taxes, custom duties and other charges levied against the vessel which was taken over by the American government. The sale netted Uncle Sam $20,723.50.

PLANNING PROBE OF CANDIDACY

Josh Lee Charges Josh Lee's Just Running to 'Josh' Him.

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— The United States senate stepped into the Oklahoma primary today with the announcement it would appoint a special committee to investigate the candidacy of Josh Lee, 48-year-old Vinita farmer who filed as an opponent of Sen. Josh Lee for the Democratic nomination.

The state election board is holding a hearing on Senator's Lee's protest that farmer Lee's candidacy was frivolous, fraudulent and not in good faith.

The senate inquiry was precipitated by a letter from Senator Thomas (D., Okla.) who referred to his colleague's opponent as, "Josh Lee No. 2," and asserted "he could have absolutely no hope of winning the nomination for himself."

U. S. Air Armada To Assemble In Britain

LONDON — (INS) — A huge American air armada will be built up in Britain to operate under American command in close co-operation with the Royal Air Force, a high British official told International News Service today.

It was emphasized that the United States forces will operate separately from the point of view of both strategy and operations.

Meanwhile, it was emphasized that no immediate results should be expected from Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold's visit, since it will take some time to build up the American forces to maximum strength. It was emphasized, however, that the process will be started soon.

It is believed the Americans first will be sent on operational missions over the channel ports such as Brest, Cherbourg and St. Nazaire before attempting any large-scale operations over Germany.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 27, 1942.

Take it from Alexander Pope: "Act well thy part; there all the honor lies."

Motorists are gradually grasping the idea that they are expected to pull over to the curb and let the war machine go by.

Could it be that the proposed gas rationing on July 1 is also designed as a further contribution to a safe and sane Fourth?

Can We or Can't We Can?

THE REASON why a large majority of people have placidly accepted the government's sugar rationing plan, without complaint, is because they feel that it is an expression of patriotic citizenship to willingly comply with wartime restrictions which agencies of government deem necessary or advisable—not because any authoritative explanation coming out of Washington has convinced them that there is a sufficient sugar shortage to justify the one-half pound per week per person allotment.

Distribution of sugar to consumers is only one of the things that has been badly muddled by conflicting statements from Washington and it is high time for some responsible and authorized spokesman of government to clear up the confusion resulting from knowledge of immense stocks of sugar in storage by wholesalers and refiners, while the threat of an insufficient supply for home canning continues unrelieved.

First announcement, as a preliminary to rationing, was that from 100 to 200 pounds would be made available to each family unit, to meet canning-time needs, which would have been ample in most cases. Then this was cut to five pounds per person—which would have been no more than a drop in the bucket in the average family.

Then it became a probable pound of sugar for every four quarts of fruit which a housewife cans, with an additional pound per person for making jams and jellies—enough to make a couple of glasses of jelly per person, presumably to reach through the year.

The berry season is coming on apace, with cherries and other fruits anticipated in large volume as the season progresses. Unless there is greater loosening of sugar restrictions than has thus far been announced much of these crops will go to waste.

Layman observation, coupled with some expert opinion on the subject, appears to justify belief that there is more sugar in stock and in reasonable prospect than need be held to assure continuous essential supply to commercial and domestic users. If this is actually the case—and responsible government officials should know—more sugar might safely be released for home canning and jelly making than has thus far been indicated.

Program of Increasing Air Power

MAJOR ALEXANDER DE SEVERSKY is probably right in his glorification of air power, only he seems a little ahead of the game.

Wars may be won in the air, over the land and over the sea, if given the right kind of equipment and enough of it. The present war strongly suggests this conclusion, in spite of the effectiveness with which Russia is using tanks and even old-fashioned cavalry. Although armies and navies will continue, an era seems to be approaching when the "air arm" will be superior to them and will normally bear the main brunt of warfare.

Navies may become primarily carriers and supply bases for war planes. There may be an end to what Seversky calls "the complex absurdity of building airplanes to protect navies against airplanes, so that navies may do the work which the airplanes can do far more quickly, more economically and without dependence on the support of another service."

But much of this expansion of aerial warfare is still in the future. For the duration of this present war, at least, the big knockout blows may continue to be delivered by land and sea forces, supplemented by an increasingly powerful "air arm."

Roaming Dogs Damage Gardens

THAT disturbing springtime problem is here again—how to prevent neighbors' dogs from running rampant over flower beds and vegetable gardens without offending the thoughtless dog-owners who permit this to be done?

With more than ordinary attention being given this year to Victory gardens, designed to raise vegetables for home use, complaints about the ravages of dogs are more frequent than usual and, unless some effort is made toward better control of pets which become pests, there is likelihood of many garden-makers giving up in despair.

Cultivation of attractive flower gardens has also become more prevalent in Mansfield and suburbs in recent years, adding much to the beauty of home surroundings, but roaming dogs also serve to discourage continued efforts along this line.

Don't blame the dogs—blame their owners—and if any unlicensed dogs are running loose blame the dog warden . . . after you have made a report to him.

'Something for Nothing' Appeal

WHEN the Wright Aeronautical corporation was ready to begin excavating on the 12-acre farm of A. Revicki near Woodbridge, N. J., Mr. Revicki invited the public to come and get the vegetables growing thereon. Some were ripe and ready to eat, some were coming along nicely and might be safely transplanted.

Early Sunday afternoon 350 cars jammed the highways near the farm. It took the police of three village departments, and the county cops besides, to straighten out the ensuing traffic snarl. Motorists brought all sorts of containers, sensible and otherwise. At 7:30 in the evening there were still 100 cars parked at or near the farm, their owners either picking or digging.

It is safe to say that most of the motorists spent more for gas than they would have done for seeds or seedlings from a nursery. But they probably had fun, and to some it may have brought an encouragement of enterprise.

There's to be an auction of 10,000 bottles of fine liquors taken off the Normandie—not to be confused, however, with what the Indians called "fire water."

At last reports there was still some idea of continuing observance of Father's day through this year.

Frown on Campaigning By Auto

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Senator Alben (Dear Alben) Barkley, of Kentucky, Democratic leader of the senate, is giving some very bad advice to those senators who are up for renomination and re-election this year, not to mention the 435 members of the house, all of whom face the voters this fall. Courage is Barkley's middle name, there is no doubt about that, but he could take a leaf from the book of his opponent, wily and shrew Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, Republican leader of the senate.

What seems impolitic to many observers is Barkley's contention that members of congress are entitled to X gasoline ration cards; also his belaboring of one and all who would criticize congressmen for obtaining and using this privilege.

If Barkley is the outstanding user of the "Bull It Through" and "Hit Them With an Ax" school, McNary is the oustanding pussy-footer in public life. But there are pussy-footers and pussy-footers. Some of those who seem so timid to more belligerent backers are not idle, by any means.

MCNARY is scheming all the time, and his plans often bear fruit which causes the majority plenty of trouble. He just doesn't like to buck public sentiment openly, even when he thinks that public sentiment is wrong. He is a genius for picking a winner, and figuring out what issue will hurt and what will help.

It may be contended that McNary was on a losing slate in 1940, when he was running mate of Wendell L. Willkie against President Roosevelt's candidacy for a third term. But the truth is that McNary did not want that nomination, had to be virtually drafted, and was sharply criticized afterward by certain Republican enthusiasts because he did so little!

McNary suffered one of his few defeats in that campaign, but no one of his friends has any illusion that the shrewd Oregon solon nursed any visions of success. McNary was forced, as they see it, to go into a fight he knew was hopeless. But the really significant thing is that even at that McNary was not risking anything. He did not have to give up his senate seat to make the race, any more than Senator Burton K. Wheeler, did when he took the second-place nomination with the elder LaFollette, in 1924, which was also an obviously hopeless battle.

Warren G. Harding was one of the very few senators in recent times who risked his senate seat by trying to get something bigger, and he won. It happened that Harding had to choose between running for senator and running for president. McNary didn't have to choose.

The point of the X gasoline card business is that it is a symbol. A senate or representative can argue to his constituents till the cows come home that his official duties, and the good of the country, require him to have an X card. A good many folks will believe him. But SOME of them won't.

SOME of the smartest politicians in congress have refused to take X cards. Some almost as smart took them at first, and then made quite a stunt of saying they were exchanging them for a card nearer the limits of most of their constituents.

The prediction is hereby made, assuming gasoline rationing continues through the campaign — and there is no reason to suppose it will not, the rubber situation being what it is—that it will prove to be very poor politics for any senator or representative to go campaigning through his state or district in an automobile flashing his X card on gasoline stations.

It just happens that those stations are, in many instances, centers of neighborhood gossip. Some of the folks who hear about that X card are going to figure that campaigning by auto is not a necessity in the war effort.

Men Behind Bars

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DID YOU ever think how the fellow behind bars is feeling these days? He's feeling plenty. He has broken a law, maybe many a law, but he's a man nevertheless—an American man—and the dreams that burned in his heart at 17 are searing his heart now.

No, I'm not a sob sister. I don't coo over guys who have murdered their old mothers and bashed their baby's brains in. But I do know prisons and the men who must live in them, and I'm all for a movement that's spreading throughout the country, the movement to give qualified men the right to get out and fight for their land.

I've a letter in my hand as I write. It's from Robert H. Denton, Oklahoma state penitentiary. He's wondering if I won't make a plea for "FIGHTERS, INC." There are fifty men in the prime of life, with their own warden endorsing them, asking for a chance to risk their lives in the right for democracy. For years they have been training themselves with whatever equipment they could find, drilling, marching, toughening cell-weakened flesh to make themselves fit to serve in the army or navy.

Ever hear of them? Chances not. Yet their upkeep in prison is costing Oklahoma $27,750 per year. Fifty young men, some of them barely more than kids, who got off to a bum start in life. Some of them have served 17 years and some 2. Now they ask to go on serving, but on some battlefield.

No, they don't want coddling. They're willing to take the most meagre fare . . . be sent to the far ends of the earth—Australia, New Zealand, Libya, the Russian front, anywhere, even though it end in death, so long as they may defend the society they once outraged.

I'm rendering judgment on the issue, I want you to answer just one question: "Did I ever make a mistake—and how would I feel if that mistake deprived me forever of my chance to serve my nation as a man?"

As for me, I'll admit flat, I've made mistakes, big ones. I was just lucky enough not to get caught. I never killed, but by golly, I wanted to. And perhaps if I had been a bewildered 16-year-old boy, I would have done so. And I've seen a lot of our leading citizens who ought to be in solitary right now! So I'm standing with Warden Fred Hunt and Robert H. Denton and Fighters, Inc., behind their bill.

And the Oklahoma penitentiary isn't the only place where men are lifting themselves out of the dregs and asking for a chance—any chance, even though it cost their lives—to defend democracy. In Ohio state penitentiary 60 patriotic men with good records are drilling two hours a day in the hope of joining the service, and their warden, Frank B. Henderson, is standing behind them.

Before organizing the training cadres he first chose 232 ex-service men. From them he eliminated those guilty of more serious crimes and chose those whose conduct was above reproach, to become non-commissioned officers of the prison legion. Most of them are eligible for early parole. In time the Ohio "Offense Legion" hopes to include 500 trainees who will be filtered into the U. S. Army as they are released. To date Ohio's prisoners have purchased $11,000 in war bonds and $3,000 in stamps.

And Labor is lending a hand. Hitherto a paroled man faced a fate a little worse than hell. He was shunned by everyone who knew his record. He was refused employment. Now, in San Quentin, trained union shipfitters are going into the penitentiary to teach men nearing parole to take up a regular life on their release, with the enthusiastic endorsement of Warden Clinton Duffy and Allen Moore, state parole officer.

One thousand men are in training. Organized classes in welding, sheet metal work, machine shop, carpentering, shipfitting, electricity, radio, motor winding and clerical work are all being held. Three hundred men leave prison on parole each month and every last one of them is rarin' to go into the Big Scrap, either as a sailor, soldier or defense worker.

SUPPOSE ONE OF THOSE MEN WERE YOU? DO YOU THINK YOU WOULD MERIT THAT NEW CHANCE?

American dress-reformist and women's rights advocate, Amelia Jenks Bloomer, was born at Homer, N. Y. on May 27, 1818. In 1849 she took up the idea of a reform in woman's dress and the wearing of a short skirt, with loose trousers, gathered round the ankles. The name bloomers gradually attached itself to the garment.

Congressman Suggests Teagle's Resignation From Labor Board

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Standard Oil's Walter Teagle, top employer member of the War Labor Board, had a talk with a congressman a few days ago that would have made front page news had the story got out.

The conference was with Representative Stephen M. Young and followed a telephone conversation in which the plain-talking Ohioan protested bluntly about the secret synthetic rubber agreement between Standard Oil of New Jersey and the German chemical trust, I. G. Farbenindustrie.

During the telephone conversation, Young dropped some strong hints to the effect that he thought Teagle should resign from the Labor board, and after Young hung up, Teagle went to the Capitol to "talk it over." Young received him cordially, but stuck to his guns.

"I think it would be a very good thing for the war effort," said the Ohioan, "if all dollar-a-year men resigned. I don't mean you alone. I men all those who have jobs with war agencies and are still on the payrolls of private industry."

No $1-a-Year-Man.

BUT I'm not a dollar-a-year man," replied Teagle. "I'm paid at the rate of $25 a day for my work with the War Labor board. Furthermore, I do not receive a salary from Standard Oil. I'm retired on pension."

Young pointed out that the fact still remained that Teagle was an official of Standard Oil when the cartel deal was signed.

"It greatly shakes my faith in our big corporations," Young declared, "to think that one of them would enter into a deal to restrict the production of such a vital war product as synthetic rubber at a time when we were preparing for war with the country with which the deal was made."

Teagle contended that the agreement was not as one-sided as the Truman committee made it appear. Had it not been for the agreement, Teagle insisted, the United States would not have certain vital German processes for the production of synthetic rubber.

"If you give me a few days' time," Teagle pleaded, "I'll be glad to prepare a memo setting forth the full facts about the agreement.

Young said he'd be glad to look over the statement, but could make no promises that he would not make a speech demanding Teagle's resignation.

No Waistline Pictures.

CHUNKY, affable Lynn Stambaugh, national commander of the American Legion, found the president working in his shirt sleeves when he called at the White House to report on Legion activities in the war effort. After the conference, when photographers were ushered in for a picture, the president seemed disturbed about something.

"Shall we pose with or without our coats on?" he asked, as the photographers were focusing their cameras.

Stambaugh, taking this as a hint, immediately began to peel his coat off.

"No—wait a minute," said the president, and then added with a grin, "Have you by any chance got on suspenders?"

"Why, er, yes, I have," replied Stambaugh, somewhat baffled.

"In that case, I'll put my coat on," said the president. "We'll both wear them. It will make a better picture."

Any member of the American Legion will tell you that Lynn Stambaugh, who hails from Fargo, North Dakota, and has been doing an outstanding job as national commander, is quick on the uptake. In a flash, he sized up the situation.

Caressing a slightly protuberant waistline, the Legionnaire chuckled and replied, "Just as you say, Mr. President."

Note: The president warmly complimented Stambaugh on the Legion's work in training air raid wardens and its highly successful house-to-house war bond campaign, which already has netted over $100,000,000 in purchase pledges.

Royalty on Tour.

CROWN PRINCESS MARTHA of Norway has only one white hand. The other is blue from shaking hands with 3,000 Norwegian-Americans in Minneapolis. This equals the best Eleanor Roosevelt records.

The crown princess accompanied Crown Prince Olav in a whirlwind tour to carry the message of Norway to the U. S. A. In a series of one-night stands, they covered 21 cities in 22 days, and the crown prince spoke 50 times.

Whenever the princess was called upon, she said, "My husband does the talking for the family."

Like a pair of one-night-standers, the prince and princess jumped from city to city, spending only five nights in hotels, the others in sleeping cars. They were on display constantly, the prince wearing the field uniform of a general, with high boots, and a high collar decorated by three silver stars on a gold band.

At Tacoma, Wash., the prince finished speaking at 8:35, dashed out to catch an 8:40 train. The police commissioner ordered all lights turned red, stopping traffic in the entire city, while the prince raced to the train. He made it.

At Portland, Ore., Lt. Gen. William S. Knudsen dropped out of the skies in an army transport, and Princess Martha, whose aunt is the Queen of Denmark, greeted him in Danish. Then Knudsen and the prince and princess went into the airport for a soda pop.

When the royal Norwegians were having their hands pumped blue in Minneapolis, a Norwegian woman asked the prince what she could do to help Norway. "The best way to help Norway," said Prince Olav, "is to help the United States."

Congress "X" Cards.

HERE is some political sentiment now going the rounds of the country which pretty well represents public opinion:

"In Great Britain, the common people get 2 gallons of gasoline a month, and members of parliament also get 2 gallons a month.

"In the United States, the common people get 3 gallons of gasoline a week, but members of congress get "X" gallons—unknown and unlimited.

"Plus 'X' resentment—unknown and unlimited."

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The cadets of the United States Military Academy have established a shrine to Lieutenant Alexander Ramsay Ninninger, a member of the 1941 graduating class, who died at Bataan Peninsula. The monument to "Sandy" Ninninger will not stand on the beautifully landscaped grounds of the post, but, if the cadets have their way, it will be as durable as the granite figures that do adorn its lawns and gardens.

The memorial to Ninninger is a show, an annual performance by a Broadway success, to perpetuate the ceremony which "Sandy" himself inaugurated only a year ago, before he graduated and went to death on a battlefield. Ninninger established the custom in the spring of '41 by persuading the management of "Arsenic and Old Lace" to come to West Point. This year John C. Wilson helped carry on the tradition by moving his company of "Blithe Spirit," the Noel Coward comedy, to the spacious theater - gymnasium on the post grounds.

THE "Blithe Spirit" players arrived in a war-time atmosphere, at a post where an unaccustomed vigilance prevailed. The stars—Clifton Webb, Peggy Wood, Leonora Corbett and Mildred Natwick—motored up independently, armed with passes which limited their stay to one day only. Similar passes were given to other members of the company, crew and staff who came by bus. Troops on motorcycles met the visitors, saw to it that their passes were in order, and escorted them into the grounds.

The post is well equipped for theatrical production. The spacious hall has a public address system which conveys the voices of the actors to the remote corners of the building. It has been endowed with the discarded settings of past hits. The setting of "Tovarich," for instance, was adroitly made over into a Kentish living room, which is the locale of the Coward fable. Lights, properties and other equipment are there in abundance, a heritage from the now defunct WPA theater.

THE annual play is an item of the lecture course, and the cadets are taxed a half a dollar for admittance. Officers of the faculty must also pay the fee, and even Major General Francis B. Wilby, superintendent of West Point, who arrived too recently to enroll himself in the lecture bureau attractions, had to take his chance on getting tickets. He was accommodated, however, and expressed his appreciation of the privilege by entertaining the company at a garden reception after the performance.

Cadet Alvin D. Wilder, who succeeded "Sandy" Ninninger was chairman of the arrangement committee, presided at the luncheon to the company. He credited John Anderson, New York drama critic, with smoothing the way for Ninninger. Of the latter he said:

"Sandy had a lively interest in the theater. On leave, he haunted the playhouses, and read everything he could get hold of on plays and players. As a matter of fact, he once aspired to a career in the theater. But he recognized shortcomings which would have prevented him from becoming an actor. So he did the next best thing. He came to West Point."

Believers In Golden Age.

Editor News-Journal:

Referring to the editorial in Sunday's paper "Looking toward 'Golden Age'," this idea of a Golden Age is nothing new to the Baha'i scattered all over the world, inasmuch as 70 years ago or more, Baha'u'llah, the author and founder of the Baha'i faith, whom his followers believe speaks by the authority and will of God, declared "These ruinous wars shall pass away and the 'Most Great Peace' shall come....These strifes and this bloodshed and discord must cease and all men be as one kindred and one family. All the governments on earth will change. Oppression will envelop the world. And following a universal convulsion the sun of justice will rise from the horizon of the unseen realm." Further investigation of his teachings reveals the fact that this time is not many years hence.

And so despite the fact that the very foundations of society are trembling and crumbling, the Baha'i hold an optimistic attitude, for they are told regarding the forces of disintegration which are battering at the fabric of a travailing society "God's purpose is none other than to usher in, in ways He alone can bring about, and the full significance of which He alone can fathom, the great, the golden age of a long-divided, a long-afflicted humanity. Its present state, indeed even its immediate future, is dark, distressingly dark. Its distant future, however, is radiant, gloriously radiant—so radiant that no eye can visualize it."

Home Pictures

A "Pictures From Home" campaign, started by newspapers, magazine, camera clubs and photographic dealers in the East, has met wide approval among amateur photographers eager to perform a patriotic service. The plan suggested is this:

The amateur photographer finds a family from which a man has entered the armed forces. The amateur photographs the members of the family, family pets, scenes around the home, etc. He gives the finished pictures to the family to send to the man in uniform, contributing his photographic knowledge as well as all costs such as film, developing and finishing, so that the set of pictures costs the family absolutely nothing.

The prints must be small enough to fit into a soldier's pocket. Word received from men at camp and on duty indicates that these pictures from home are deeply appreciated. Amateurs who went to get their cameras into direct action in behalf of the armed forces are urged to inaugurate their own "Pictures From Home" services.

RITUAL OPENS GRADS' WEEK AT ASHLAND HIGH

Banquet, Baccalaureate, and Commencement to Follow Assembly Friday.

ASHLAND—The farewell assembly for Ashland high school seniors will be held Friday morning at McDowell auditorium. The 210 graduates in this year's class are officially dismissed from classes after this assembly.

Opening at 9:10 a. m. the processional of seniors will take place with the high school orchestra providing music. Paul Berry, president of the seniors, will lead the pledge of allegiance followed by the national anthem played by the orchestra and the parade of colors. The high school choir will sing the Alma Mater.

F. E. Gnagey, senior class adviser, will give his farewell to the class followed by response by Berry. Portia Dessenberg will read the class prophesy. Principal S. F. Jameson will give his farewell address followed by the dedication of the high school annual by Woodford Garrigus. Superintendent of Schools J. E. Bohn will speak to the seniors followed by the seniors' farewell by Harry Baxter, vice president of the class.

Immediately after the recessional the seniors will raise their flag on the front lawn of the high school building.

The annual Junior-Senior banquet will be held Friday night with dinner at the Methodist Educational building followed by dancing at the high school gymnasium.

Sunday night the class sermon will be given at Trinity Lutheran church by Dr. Paul P. Anspach, pastor of the church. Music for the service will be presented by the A Cappella Choir of the high school directed by Dr. Louis E. Pete.

Graduation exercises will be held Thursday, June 4, at 8 p. m. at McDowell auditorium. Grace Phillips is the valedictorian of the class and Esther McNaull the salutatorian. Following the plan of a student participation program ten students will present the graduation program.

Those who will appear are: Eileen Berry, Rosemary Page, George Bott, William Morganstern, Robert Semple, Richard Howman, Betty Hiner and Jeannette Freer.

This year's class of 210 includes 117 girls and 93 boys. One graduate, Charles Karth, is in the Navy stationed at Great Lakes, Ill. He plans to attend the graduation.

BODY FOUND IN RESERVOIR AT N. WASHINGTON

Restaurant Employe Found Dead After Absence Leads To Search.

NEW WASHINGTON — The fact that a downtown restaurant wasn't open at the usual hour Tuesday morning when other employes and early morning customers arrived led to the discovery soon after of the body of Louis Heinmiller, 66, floating in two feet of water in the recently-constructed city reservoir.

Mr. Heinmiller was an employe of the restaurant, and for a long time had opened the doors at the usual time, 6 a. m.

Coroner A. C. Kackley of Galion returned a verdict of death by drowning.

Mr. Heinmiller made his home with a sister, Mrs. Charles Hildebrand. Their residence is but a few doors from the restaurant where Mr. Heinmiller worked. The reservoir where his body was found is about a half mile from his home, in a different direction from the restaurant.

The coroner's verdict did not say that Mr. Heinmiller had taken his own life. However, the reservoir was a considerable distance off the most direct route from his home to the restaurant.

S. L. Wechter, proprietor of the restaurant, said that the night watchman had told him that he had seen Mr. Heinmiller in front of the restaurant at 5:30 a. m., the hour at which he usually came to work.

However, Mr. Heinmiller, according to the night watchman's story, did not come in the restaurant, but walked away.

A searching party led by Harry Luidhart and Ellsworth Maul found the body near the edge of the reservoir about 9 a. m.

Wechter said Mr. Heinmiller had worked for him for 20 years, but that so far as he knew, he had not recently been in ill health or despondent. However, residents recalled that a brother had drowned about 10 years ago.

In addition to Mrs. Hildebrand, at whose home he lived, Mr. Heinmiller is survived by two other sisters, Mrs. Catherine Becker, who lived at the same residence, and Mrs. Margaret Kahler, Tiffin, and a brother, Adam, of Chatfield. He was unmarried.

Private funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Thursday at the High funeral home by Rev. Paul Gerlach. Burial will be in the Lutheran cemetery.

URGES ALL TO DIG DOWN FOR SALVAGE DRIVE

Hout, Campaign Head, Prepares For Start of Collection of Discards For War.

Ray Hout, Richland county civilian defense chairman, today urged city and county residents to save rubber, scrap metal and rags to be collected in the salvage campaign which will get under way in a few days.

Such articles as old tires, hot water bottles, garden hose, rubber toys, overshoes, raincoats, and rubber heels are considered especially valuable now since they can be used in manufacturing equipment needed by the country's armed forces.

Hout pointed out that there is no need for such things as razor blades, bottle tops, old felt hats, peach kernels, or excelsior.

He urged that collections of metal, rubber, and rags be separated. Paper boxes and cartons should be flattened, tied in bundles and kept dry until a truck calls for them, he said.

This new salvage campaign will cover rural areas thoroughly, Hout said. He added that a large quantity of scrap metal was overlooked in a campaign last winter because some of it was covered by snow and the roads were so slippery that trucks could not call at every rural home.

It has been estimated that every farm in the county can produce an average of 500 pounds of scrap iron this year in addition to other scrap materials that are valuable now.

There are old automobiles on many farms which will yield about 1,500 pounds of scrap iron and steel each, it was said. It requires 12 junk cars to provide enough steel for a four-ton army truck.

LEAGUERS NAME MANSFIELD GIRL

Elect Miss Eleanor Carver as North Central President of Lutheran Group.

Miss Eleanor Carver, representing the First Lutheran church, Mansfield, today was the new president of the Northcentral Federation of Luther Leagues of the central conference of the Lutheran synod of Ohio.

Miss Carver was chosen at a dinner meeting of Luther League delegates Monday night at the First Lutheran church. Other officers elected at the same time are Miss Helen Rorick, Bucyrus, vice president, and Miss Vivian Beck of Lucas, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Margaret Miller of Tiro won first prize in a district declamation contest held in connection with the election meeting. Miss Vivian Beck of Lucas was second. The state finals will be conducted during the Lutheran summer school at Lakeside July 20-26.

Rev. Joseph W. Frease, director of young people's work in Ohio, outlined the summer program of youth activities at Camp Mowana, formerly Camp Avery Hand, east of Mansfield.

MRS. C. GRAETZ RITES THURSDAY

BUCYRUS — Funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Munz funeral home for Mrs. Caroline E. Graetz, 82, of 416 South Walnut street, who died of a heart attack at her home Tuesday. Burial will be made in Oakwood cemetery.

A sister, Mrs. George Kleindienst of Bucyrus, survives.

Mrs. Graetz was born in Bucyrus Dec. 28, 1859, and lived her entire lifetime in this community. Her husband, T. W. Graetz, died seven years ago.

GIRLS PLANNING TO GO TO COLLEGE HONORED

University Women Entertain at Tea In Parish House; Miss Elizabeth Dingus Is Guest Speaker.

BROUGHT to Mansfield by the American Association of University Women to talk to all girls from the January and June graduating classes who will enter college in the fall, Miss Elizabeth Dingus of Painesville gave an informative, useful and challenging talk to nearly 60 Mansfield girls at the Congregational parish house yesterday afternoon.

"Your College and Your Future" was the general topic under which Miss Dingus discussed the various types of colleges the girls could enter; the practical or personal side of entering college and finally the careers which at present are most promising.

Miss Dingus pointed out that it was the most patriotic job the graduating high school senior could do was to be as educated as possible. The need for trained and educated minds at the close of this war will be tremendous. The government is not asking for more women but it is asking for more professional women. It is especially encouraging women with science talents to develop those talents.

The co-educational institutions are meeting the greatest change or emphasis and it will be at this type of school that the girls would find more adjustments necessary because of the war than they would find at the strictly women's colleges.

She gave Clarence Lovejoy's book "So You Are Going to College" as a good reference for the girls to use.

The strictly professional schools were only advised for girls who definitely know just what work they are best fitted for. The junior college was especially recommended for those who can not as yet determine what they wish their life work to be. It was recommended only as a pre-college course. In the discussion on professions Miss Dingus urged girls with liking for chemistry and science to consider the nurses training schools and especially those which combine college courses and lead to superintendent's positions upon graduation.

Under the practical side of college life, the girls were advised about clothes to take to college—simple clothes with opportunity to "fill in" with local campus fads and fashions. They were urged more than anything else to "budget" not only their money but their time and their energy.

As to the most promising careers open for the girls at present Miss Dingus stressed the field of science, then the present importance of the home economics and the need for extra persons in the newspaper field. Languages, according to Miss Dingus, are now and will be more important than ever before. Secretarial work, but with a college first, offers tremendous advantages. Personal work, with college psychology course necessary, is a good field.

With appropriate words of congratulation and well wishes, Mrs. Charles Kuntz, president of the Mansfield branch of A.A.U.W., presented the Misses Clara Ivanich and Wanda Hess with the first and second awards, respectively, which are given annually by the organization. The awards are made on a scholarship basis and the girls are then judged by all their teachers and graded for their "citizenship." Each award winner received a gold locket engraved with the honor accorded her.

Rooms of the parish house were attractively decorated with floral arrangements by Mrs. Paul McConnell of the Astowela Garden club, Mrs. I. D. Wallington of the Linnaeus Garden club, Mrs. Henry Paulson of the Audubon club, and Mrs. Robert Black of the Johnny Appleseed Garden club. The unusual and attractive two-sided table centerpiece was by Mrs. Walter Willis of the Town and Country Garden club. Mrs. Albert Yuncker and Mrs. Frank Maxwell served the tea. Favors were tiny scrools and tiny "Mortar Board" hats made by Mrs. R. A. Rowlands and her committee.

Musical selections by an A.A.U.W. string ensemble organized by Miss Fannie Low Eiler. The musicians were Miss Anita Strauch, Miss Patricia Hieber and Mrs. George Keil with Miss Eiler at the piano. Guest speaker was introduced by Miss Emma Waring, high school activities chairman, who was co-chairman with Mrs. Rowlands for the tea. Mrs. Kuntz welcomed the girls, explained the purpose of the tea and pointed out to the guests the challenge for leadership in the years to come.

Two Receive Scholarship Awards at Tea

—Photos by Perez

Miss Clara Ivanich, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Ivanich, 339 Wayne street, and Miss Wanda Hess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hess, 35 North Adams street, were recipients of the first and second awards, respectively, given by the University Women for high scholarship records and excellent citizenship. Each was given a gold locket. Presentation was made by Mrs. Charles Kuntz, president of A. A. U. W., at a tea given Tuesday afternoon in the parish house of the First Congregational church. Guests of honor were 55 girls from the January and June high school graduating classes who plan to enter college in the fall. Miss Elizabeth Dingus of Painesville spoke on "Your College and Your Future." To receive the awards, the Misses Ivanich and Hess had a scholastic average of "B" or above and had never received a "D" in even a minor subject. Their teachers judged them also on the basis of good citizenship.

'HEALTH FOR VICTORY' CLUB PLANS TO MEET

Members of Local Nutrition Classes Will Be Guests at Canning Demonstration In Westinghouse Auditorium.

THIS is a big week for Mansfield members of the Westinghouse "Health for Victory" club—Sunday they were given recognition nationally over the Red Network NBC "Listen America" radio program—today the June issue of American Home magazine just off the press carries a five and a half page feature story on the club's activities titled "Nutrition All Over Town"—and tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. they assemble in the Westinghouse auditorium for their fourth monthly meeting on the timely subject of "Home Canning."

In the Sunday afternoon broadcast, a sustaining program sponsored jointly by the Office of Defense Health and Welfare series and the Women's National Emergency committee, Dr. M. L. Wilson, speaking on the subject of nutrition in industry, cited the local club's activities under the direction of Mrs. Julia Kiene, manager of the company's Home Economics Institute. Dr. Wilson explained that the Health for Victory club in the Mansfield Westinghouse plant was a good example of how nutrition could be applied in industry to improve the health of workers and their families. Parts of Mrs. Kiene's club talks were dramatized during the half-hour radio program.

"The combined effect of increased demand for fruits and vegetables for lend-lease countries, limit on available containers, and reduced shipping facilities in this country are a forewarning of the necessity of every homemaker doing her share of canning at home this season," she said.

In presenting this timely subject Mrs. Kiene will use 16 charts covering the amount of fruits and vegetables required per person per month, the importance of various food preservation methods, advantages of home canning, etc. Canning demonstrations will be included in her program.

Everyone attending will receive a copy of the Meal Planning Guide for the month of June including menus, recipes, and lunch box suggestions for every day of the month.

While the club is limited to wives of the company's workers, special invitations for tomorrow's meeting have been mailed to all members of local nutrition classes. Several out-of-town magazine and newspaper priters are expected to come to Mansfield for this meeting.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 28.

According to the lunar as well as mutual aspects bearing rule on the affairs of this day there may not be any startling developments or worthwhile accomplishments as far as workaday engagements are concerned. Business and finance and credits have a sinister influence, with fraud, subterfuge and imposture possible unless much prudence and caution be exercised. The young, romantic and pleasure-loving may be active and resourceful.

Those whose birthday it is may find their best success and happiness in realms of pleasure, the artistic or emotional life rather than business or finance, which have a menace of fraud, duplicity, imposture or other disappointing or intriguing experience. There may be much enterprise and progress in youthful aspirations.

A child born on this day should have much ability in a refined and cultural way, and may find pleasure in its artistic, social or romantic attachments.

BE READY FOR SHOCKS

Unless you can stand shocks, in the form of seeing your opponents accomplishing things against you which offhand appear impossible, bridge is no game for you. Sitting in the West position on this deal in a friendly rubber game was one of the greatest card players the world has ever seen or ever will see, Sidney S. Lenz. Considering his distribution, his opening bid of 1-Heart was thoroughly sound and would have been made by 999 out of every 1,000 fine players. You can imagine, however, how it must have sounded to South, who was vulnerable while Mr. Lenz was not. Most certainly it had all of the earmarks of a psychic. His double, followed by his 4-Heart call, convinced North that Mr. Lenz had bid a psychic with a weak hand, and consequently he issued a slam invitation which his partner accepted.

Do you know anybody in the world who would not double that contract holding Mr. Lenz's hand, especially since he had such a good lead with his club honor sequence? As it turned out, only one trick was lost, to the Spade A, as the diamond finesse worked, so the contract was made.

Tomorrow's Problem.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I knew that it would be of no use to protest my father's dictum, although I felt supremely foolish to be pointed out as in need of medical attention. So I sat perfectly still while Dr. Twitchell crossed to my chair, looked intently at me, felt my pulse and slipped a thermometer under my tongue.

"I'm afraid you're 'mistook in your judgments,' Disko Troop," he told my father. "Mrs. Graham is not ill, nor is she in need of medical attention, except a tablet or two, and a prescription to get some sleep as soon as she can."

He opened his bag, put a few white tablets into an envelope and gave them to me."

"One every two hours until you go to bed," he said, then turned to my father, who was looking somewhat dourly at him, but who, stickler for discipline as he is, did not contradict the doctor.

Ready for Diswell.

"Where's my next patient?" he asked, and my father bowed in his most winning manner to Professor Diswell.

"I am sure you will be more comfortable in the adjoining apartment," he said, "and there the physician will have a better opportunity to examine you. Professor Diswell, Dr. Twitchell."

He turned then to Jack.

"Charles, please bring your master to the next apartment," he said. "Are you ready, Dr. Twitchell?"

"Quite ready," the physician answered. Then the four went out of the room, my father first pausing long enough to hand me a small billfold, which I knew contained money to recompense Jim Watson and the state trooper.

I turned to the two as soon as the others had left, and spoke quickly, gratefully.

"I never shall be able to thank you adequately for what you both have done," I said earnestly.

Madge Gets Notes.

"It wasn't anything," Jim Watson said quickly. "I'm mighty glad of this chance to get down to New York. I haven't been here in ages."

"I'm glad of a chance to get away from the regular grind, too," the state trooper said. "Would you like those notes now, Mrs. Graham? They really said very little, but I put down every syllable they uttered."

"I am sure I can read them," I said, and took the two pages of long hand which he held out to me. I read them through quickly and gave my verdict instantly.

"They are like print," I said.

"For myself, I simply am going to offer you my very grateful thanks for what you have done," I said. "But my father, in charge of all this business, has commissioned me to hand you your expenses, for your stay in the city tonight and your return to Connecticut."

I opened the billfold, saw that my father had put two tens and two fives in it, with a piece of paper bearing the inscription in large letters: "Fifteen for each." Taking out the money, and tucking the paper out of sight, I handed them the bills, saying in answer to the protest I saw on their faces:

"This isn't pay. We never can pay you for your help. It's simply expense money. My father could not permit you to pay your own expenses while rendering us such a signal service."

Jim Watson eyed the bills whimsically.

"Some expenses, I'll say," he drawled.

The young state trooper looked embarrassed.

Greeted by Ronald.

"I'm paid anyway, you know," he said. "I ought not to take this."

"I'm afraid you have no choice," I said firmly. "My father is a hard man with whom to argue. He likes his own way and insists upon having it. So please have a good time with it."

"We'll do that," Jim Watson said. "Isn't there something more we can do for you first?"

"Not a thing," I told them.

"We'll be getting along then," Watson said, and with cordial good-byes they went out into the night, as I turned back from the door to face Ronald.

"Oh, Aunt Madge!" he said. "It seemed as if you never would come back. I've wanted to see you so."

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Effective in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10c and 25c.

Give Up "Makeshift" Constipation Remedies!

Why fool with constipation? Why try to combat the trouble after it has already made you miserable?

It may well be that your constipation is caused by too little "bulk food" in your diet, for medical science warns that lack of "bulk" is one of the commonest causes of constipation.

If yours is this kind of constipation, those purges and cathartics can give you, at best, only temporary relief. Eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, on the other hand, corrects the cause by supplying the "bulk food" you lack and must have! Enjoy this crisp, crunchy cereal daily, drink plenty of water, and like so many others, you'll "Join the Regulars"! ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, see a doctor.

THE WAR TODAY

(This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World war analyst, is being written in his absence for a fortnight by Fred Vanderschmidt.)

* * *

The Mediterranean situation is full of unpleasant military possibilities, and it would be dangerous to disregard any of them. Yet the current dickerings of Germany, Italy and the dismal Vichy "government" of Pierre Laval have created such a smoke-screen of rumor that it may be well to look at the realities as they are known.

These are facts, as separated from futurities:

GERMANY: Her primary pre-occupation is and must continue to be Russia. It is, however, to her advantage to immobilize in the western Mediterranean the greatest possible number of United Nations aircraft, warships and machines. Because of her vast needs in the east, Germany wants to do this (A) by a nerve war and by military feints (B) by using the men and equipment of her allies, or vassals, to do as much of the actual fighting as is necessary.

She could, of course, use the French war fleet to considerable advantage in the Mediterranean, but the report that she is planning to man them with German crews must be accepted with considerable reserve.

It must be remembered she has taken no such action with regard to the hideaway Italian battleships. It is not certain, either, that she has the trained personnel or the oil to spare.

FRANCE: Pierre Laval, so far, has actually delivered to the Germans little more than trouble, although that certainly was not his intention. The French generally detest him and regard him with dismay the way his regime has antagonized the United States and brought new territorial demands from the despised Italians, and have shown a new upsurge of internal resistance to "collaboration." Laval has, in fact, proved to France that the Vichy "government" can govern nothing.

ITALY: The blackshirts' greed for French territory never has been far below the surface; it was, however, shushed by Germany as long as it appeared that Vichy might be able to arouse some popular French support for "collaboration." Whatever Germany will do about it now, there is no doubt of her anxiety to settle the question.

It is keeping at least 300,000 well-equipped Italian troops in comfortable mobilization on the French Alps maritimes border, when they might be dying for the "new order" below Kharkov. It is interesting also that Italy, once vociferous for "Tunisia, Corsica, Nice," now has lost her desire for Tunisia, while the French, probably on German suggestion, hint they are willing to discuss.

Why? Corsica and Nice have no military or economic importance to Germany. Should the Italians get title, however, they would be pleased to devote their national energies to "occupying" them.

But Tunisia—it is practically in the north African battle zone, which is run 100 per cent by the Germans; an excellent route and reservoir of supply for the desert armies in Libya. The Germans can use an "Italian" Tunisia; they can't be bothered with Corsica and Nice. The Italians know it, too.

RENT CONTROL DUE IN TWENTY AREAS JUNE 1

OPA Orders Tenants to Cut Payments Back to 'Fair Rent Date.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Federal regulation of rents will be imposed June 1 in 20 war-congested areas which the Office of Price administration said today had failed to take local action.

The score of communities was the first group of defense rental areas designated by Price Administrator Leon Henderson on March 2.

"In no area was it found that the price administrator's recommendation as to reduction of rents has been met for the community as a whole," the OPA said.

"Since the areas have not met Mr. Henderson's recommendations in the 60 days provided by the (price control) statute, the price administrator was required to make federal control effective."

The new levels become effective for every type of housing accommodation, even including trailers, with rents payable for the month of June.

The reductions will be automatic, OPA said, adding that the landlord's approval "is not necessary."

"Beginning June 1, as a general principle with a few exceptions, tenants are to cut their rents back to what was being charged on the maximum rent date set for their respective areas," the OPA statement specified. "x x x no matter whether the tenant pays his rent daily, weekly or monthly, he is to pay only what the same accommodations were bringing on the maximum rent date."

In 14 of the areas rents were ordered restored to the levels of April 1, 1941. In Ohio these included Akron, Ravenna and Youngstown-Warren area.

In four of the areas rents were restored to Jan. 1, 1941 levels, and in two—including Cleveland—the base date was July 1, 1941.

Simultaneously with the rent control action Henderson named 19 area rent directors to administer the program, and released the maximum rent regulations for hotels and rooming houses will be issued before June 1.

The rules call for the registration by landlords of all rental dwelling units, whether occupied or not, some time in June. The date will be fixed later.

A Mansfield youth serving with the Army in Australia will speak on the radio at 12:30 a. m. Thursday, according to a Mansfield radio listener. Robert J. Arras, 24 Dunbilt court. Who the boy is, Arras doesn't know. He was listening to his radio at 12:30 this morning, after he'd come home from work, and heard the announcement that a group of Ohio soldiers, including one from Mansfield, would appear on the program tomorrow morning. He missed the announcement of the boy's name. Station WGN sometimes carries the program.

Bernita Hawkins, elevator operator at the Farmers Bank building, had a busy time when her elevator had a black-out for about 10 minutes this morning. The lights went out while electricians were at work on the companion elevator. She of course couldn't see the signals from persons ringing bells at various floors, but the toughest part was taking passengers up She couldn't see the floor numbers so had to count the floor lights as she went up and down. Despite the difficulties, she handled the car so well that none of the passengers was detained.

The Richland County Fish and Game Protective association, an organization of sportsmen and farmers, will soon have its own clubhouse at Charles Mill lake where the association has centered its activities this spring. Gordon H. Ensminger, head of the sportsmen-farmer group, said negotiations are being completed this week for leasing a building of its own, holding most of its meetings at North Lake park. Members have been active this spring stocking Charles Mill lake with fish and developing the lake district into a recreation area.

ADMITS PLAN CAN'T START BY JULY 1

Nelson Sees Program To Be Used as Rubber Saving Measure Later.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—War Production board officials, admitting that nationwide gasoline rationing probably can not start by July 1, today considered plans for such a program as a rubber conservation measure before the end of the summer.

No final decision was taken at yesterday's regular weekly board meeting, but WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson said that the office of defense transportation had submitted plans for "rationing transportation" by rubber-tired motor vehicles.

The July 1 date, which marks the end of the 47-day temporary rationing of gasoline in the 17-state Atlantic coast area, had been mentioned unofficially as a possible time for extending gas rationing throughout the nation.

Nelson told a press conference last night that gasoline rationing seemed to be the simplest method of conserving rubber and that there just was not enough of this material for pleasure car driving. He indicated that administrative difficulties stood in the way of immediately going ahead with nationwide rationing if such a plan were adopted. The obstacles are expected to be cleared away soon.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson is scheduled to confer with President Roosevelt today.

Nelson again explained that he regarded rubber as the most important single problem before the American people at home today. The nation's economy is so geared to motor transportation, he said, that money is not a major consideration in developing tires to replace those that now are wearing out at the rate of about 125 tons each day.

Nelson pointed out that complete stoppage of automobile use would place tremendous burdens on already over-crowded bus, streetcar and train facilities in many areas. He said motorists with more than five tires would be asked to give them up voluntarily; that the government would buy them through some subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Fables From the Fifties: The medley of World War I hits that you might have heard at Cy Walter's Nightcap a few evenings ago ("Mademoiselle From Armentieres," "K-K-K-Katie" and "Over There") were in honor of Hank Gowdy, famed ex-baseball player, and now coach of the Cincinnati Reds, who was the first ballplayer to enlist during the first World war. . . . The tunes reminded Gowdy of an incident that occurred after the Armistice, when he was a member of the Army of Occupation stationed in Coblenz. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker; Grantland Rice and Damon Runyon were at the press headquarters in a town about 90 miles from Coblenz, and when they heard Gowdy was so near they arranged for him to get leave and join them.

They wined him and dined him for the next five days as he had never been feted before, and in fact, did their utmost to persuade him to stay another day or so. But Gowdy insisted on rejoining his regiment, so after a champagne breakfast, they let him go.

They ushered him out to a great limousine, and the trio delivered lengthy instructions regarding Gowdy's comfort and safety to a small, thin, meek chauffeur.

And so Gowdy entered the car, lolled in the tonneau, and was sped back to town by the then small, thin and meek Alexander Woollcott.

PUBLIC ACTS IN LIBRARIAN CASE

Telegrams Greet Members of Board Meeting to Talk Noon Resignation.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Telegrams addressed to the state library board greeted members arriving today for their second meeting in a week to consider the resignation of Paul A. T. Noon as state librarian.

Although contents of the messages were not divulged, library attaches recalled that board members received numerous letters protesting circumstances under which Noon resigned, effective next Monday.

Noon submitted his resignation to Education Director Kenneth C. Ray last Feb. 10 during a dispute over Noon's traveling expenses which Ray termed excessive. The librarian contended the travel was necessary to strengthen the state library system.

Ray told the previous meeting Noon had built a strong organization for self-perpetuation in the $5,000-a-year position to which he was appointed in 1933 during the Democratic administration of former Gov. George White.

Ray, a Bricker appointee, is board chairman by virtue of his position as education director. Two other Republicans and two Democrats comprise the board.

HOLMES COUNTY TEACHER DIES

I. N. Miller, 81, Succumbs After Heart Attack.

MILLERSBURG — A Holmes county teacher for 30 years, I. Newton Miller, 81, died at his home in Killbuck last night following a heart attack.

He was born in Coshocton county May 20, 1861 and operated a general store in Killbuck in addition to teaching school.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Minnie Miller; a son, Guy Miller of Canton; a daughter, Mrs. Hazel Carpenter of Millersburg; a sister, Mrs. L. A. Overholt and a brother, W. F. Miller, both of Kent.

The body was removed to the Elliott Funeral home and will be removed to the home Thursday. Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Friday at the Killbuck Church of Christ.

HEART ATTACK ENDS IN DEATH

Mrs. Grant Shreffler, 70, Succumbs at Home In Ashland.

ASHLAND—Mrs. Grant Shreffler, 70, died yesterday afternoon at her home here following a heart attack.

Born Oct. 1, 1871 near Wooster, she lived in Ashland for the past 52 years. She was a member of the United Brethren church.

Surviving are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Carl Urban of Garfield Heights, and Mrs. Roger W. Palmer of Cleveland; three sisters, Mrs. Doris Beaver and Mrs. George Collins, both of Center, N. Y., and Mrs. Iva Thompson of Schenectady, N. Y.; two grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Denbow-Baer funeral home to remain until services at 3 p. m. Friday, at the United Brethren church.

SIDNEY A. FOLTZ, PROMINENT IN BUSINESS CIRCLES, DIES

SIDNEY A. FLOTZ

Sidney Albert Foltz, 71, former manager of the Mansfield Railway, Light and Power company and prominent in Mansfield business circles, died at midnight Tuesday in General hospital after a brief illness.

Mr. Foltz, who lived at 135 Carpenter road, had been in the hospital three weeks. He was born in Mansfield Sept. 16, 1870, and spent his entire life in the city.

At the time of his death Mr. Foltz was secretary of the Walpark Realty company and manager of the Walpark building.

For 17 years he was manager of the Mansfield Railway, Light and Power company which operated the street car system in Mansfield. He also was Mansfield superintendent of the old Cleveland Southwestern Interurban company which, before the days of the bus lines, had traction lines throughout this section of the state.

The body was removed to the Geiger Funeral home where it will remain until Friday morning. Services will be conducted at 9:30 a. m. Friday at St. Peter's Catholic church with Msgr. R. C. Goebel officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Katherine Foltz; a daughter, Mrs. Richard Burnham of Mansfield, and a son, Sidney, at home.

Holmes Judge Sends Youth To Columbus in Shooting Case.

MILLERSBURG — Emanuel L. Mast, 17-year-old Amish farm youth, who yesterday pleaded guilty to a charge of shooting his sister with intent to kill, today was sent to Columbus for observation as a possible mental case by state authorities.

The youth testified yesterday in juxenile court that he felt the urge to "shoot somebody" and that he "liked funerals."

Mast was accused of shooting his half-sister, Sarah, 21, at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Masts, May 15, while the family was having dinner. She is recovering.

NEW POLICY

Assumes Cost of Packages Forwarded to Service Men.

Packages weighing 20 pounds or less which are addressed to men in the armed forces will be forwarded at no extra cost to men who have been transferred since the packages were sent, the Railway Express agency announced today. The senders, however, were reminded that they must pay the first shipping cost.

To come under this plan, the packages must be addressed to naval posts and camps. The packages will not be forwarded to points outside the United States when they are addressed to training centers in this country.

Shipments weighing over 20 pounds will be held at the point to which they were addressed until the sender is notified and arranges payment of the additional shipping charge, it was said.

Railway Express officials urged senders of packages to servicemen to wrap and address the shipments carefully and not to send any perishable goods that might spoil during warm weather.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Two Columbus men committed suicide, police reported. Krister W. Henrick, 26, ended his life with a revolver. Ewell T. Fuller, 56, inhaled carbon monoxide fumes from the engine of his automobile because of ill health, Coroner Edward Smith said.

Herald Arrival of Cole Bros. Circus In City June 11

Advance advertising crews were still busy today heralding the appearance in Mansfield of Cole Brothers circus. It is scheduled to show at the Richland county fairground on Thursday, June 11.

The circus travels in a mile-long train of double cars which carry a show personnel of some 1,000 persons and equipment, advance agents said.

The circus this year features the Six Wallabies, Australian acrobatic stars, the Great Silvers, tight-wire performers, and numerous other acrobatic and aerial performers. Senor Juan Loba, famed Mexican cowboy and a troupe of Mexican and American wild west performers will also appear on the program.

The circus claims a troupe of 50 clowns, including Otto Greibling, Horance Laird, Freddie Freeman.

A horse show in which nearly 100 three and five-gaited stallions are on display in a separate tent is offered at no extra charge.

Circus performances start at 2 and 8 p. m., with the gates opening one hour earlier to allow inspection of the menagerie and its collection of wild animals.

RITES THURSDAY

Murder On the Avenue

By Carolyn Wells

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XX

With his most ingratiating manner, Stone told Hugh of his own connection with the case, and asked for a brief description of the questioning of the four young men suspects.

"I know, Mr. McCleod, that if, as I have reason to think, the murderer was not Mr. Herrick, but one of the other men present with him, you will be glad to have Mr. Herrick freed and the other man arrested. That is why I am asking you to tell me of the attitude, rather than the words of those other three men, who, with Herrick, listened to Captain Raynor's questions."

"I am sorry, Mr. Stone, but you are asking too much of a sick man. I am under the doctor's care, and to detail the conversation you ask would be a great drain on my nerves. You can get it all from the stenographic reports, in the hands of the police, and I advise you to pursue that course."

"Thank you, Mr. McCleod. I will do so. I will not detain you, but I am anxious to see the room where the crime took place."

So dominating was Fleming Stone's personality, that the rugged Scotchman left the room, and sent Dickson, the valet, down to see the urbane visitor.

"Good morning, Dickson," Stone said, affably, and the valet knew at once that here was a man who commanded respect, deference and liking.

"Mr. Stone?" he said, looking into the gray eyes. "Mr. McCleod bids me take you to the room you wish to see. Will you come with me?"

Stone followed him up the marble staircase, with somewhat of the feeling he had when following guides through ancestral castles abroad. There was nothing ancestral-looking about this ultra-modern apartment, but Stone thought he had never seen one where so much money had been spent with such good taste.

Dickson took him to the guest room. It had been restored to its immaculate guest room order, and Stone looked with interest at the chaise lounge, with its chromium frame and its chartreuse satin upholstery.

"This couch stood right here, when Mrs. McCleod was found?" Stone said.

"Yes, sir; the blessed lady."

"And so young Herrick killed her. You wouldn't think it to look at him. Do you know him, Dickson?"

"Yes, sir, as I know all the men who come here."

Fleming Stone was sensitive to the faintest quiver in a voice or the slightest trembling of an eyelid, if they were caused by embarrassment or self-consciousness.

He lowered his tone, and spoke earnestly.

"Did you have any reason to suspect him especially, or—especially to doubt his guilt?"

"Mr. Stone, it is not my place to have an opinion on the matter, but I have a—well, a sort of reason to think it could not have been Mr. Herrick who killed Mrs. McCleod."

"Yes? And you gave this reason to Captain Raynor?"

"No, sir. He did not ask me."

"I wish you would tell it to me, Dickson, and I will advise you!"

Dickson looked up and saw such gentleness and friendliness in Stone's eyes, that he could not resist.

"I'm glad to tell you, sir. It is only that I saw Mrs. McCleod and Mr. Herrick together just before they went upstairs."

"Where were they?"

"In a little hall, downstairs, sir. It is where the little elevator comes down. Mrs McCleod and Mr. Herrick came from the dance room there."

"Did they see you?"

"She did, but he didn't. She laughed and put her finger to her lip, for me to make no sound. Then she urged him into the elevator—"

"Urged him?"

"Yes, sir. He did not want to go, but she coaxed him. I'm telling you, sir, because it weighs on me. He was trying to get away from her, and she was teasing him to stay by her. Well, then, sir, they went upstairs together, in her little elevator. He was just trying to get away from her—he was annoyed by her attentions, but not angry! He didn't kill her, he only wanted her to leave him alone!"

Dickson suddenly stopped, resumed his servant's air, and said:

"Forgive me, sir—but I'm glad it's out! I couldn't sleep for thinking of it. You think I did any harm, sir?"

"To whom?"

"To either of them—my lady, or Mr. Herrick?"

"Well, Dickson, you see, Mr. Herrick was arrested because they thought he was deeply in love with Mrs. McCleod, and killed her in a lover's quarrel. Now, you know, he was not in love with her, or he would not have been annoyed at her attentions. So—You think no more about it, and trust me to do what is right."

"I am only too glad to do that, Mr. Stone. Will I have to testify?"

"No. I'm going now. It may be that I shall want to see you again. Can I manage it without troubling Mr. McCleod?"

"You can send me a note in care of my brother. He works for a caterer on Madison avenue. I will give you a card."

Dickson produced a card of a well-known caterer's shop.

A further careful glance around the room convinced Stone of the hopelessness of looking for clues there.

"About that new bracelet Mrs. McCleod received that night, do you know anything about that?"

"Not much. But Linda, Mrs. McCleod's maid, who is engaged to me, knows about it. Mr. McCleod gave it to his sister. But Linda knows that it was new to Mrs. McCleod that night, and she didn't buy it herself because if she had she would have put it on when she dressed. If she had bought it herself, there would have been the box that it came in. But there was no sign of it. And here's another thing. Linda found, right in this room, on the floor behind the couch, a bunch of crumpled white tissue paper. She says the bracelet was brought here in it."

"That seems to me an important find."

"You want to see any more rooms, sir"

"No, I think not. Where is Mr. McCleod?"

"He's up in his father's apartment."

"Mr. McCleod hasn't any favorite among those four young men, has he? If it was proved that Mr. Herrick was innocent and one of the others guilty, Mr. McCleod wouldn't mind, would he?"

"I don't think he would care, sir. But the young man that did that murder was a sly one. Mr. Herrick, he is anything but sly! Mr. Murray, he's the slyest, and Mr. Haynes, too. That queer artist, Martin Delevan—well, he's sly, but he didn't have any motive."

"Say nothing to any one, Dickson, of what we have talked about."

"Mr. Stone, no one shall hear a word from me."

Leaving the house, Stone walked along Park avenue. For the first time in his career he was conscious of a clash of duties. He wanted to engage in the tracking down of Alma McCleod's murderer. And he wanted to put all his energies to work on a speedy and successful hunt for Jason Webb's missing granddaughter.

He realized that both endeavors were to benefit Brand Herrick, and it ought to be possible to combine his efforts. But he couldn't see it that way. One investigation must start and probably finish in New York City. The other must start in Michigan and finish, God knew where!

There was no connection between the two, except as they both affected Herrick. The McCleod murder had nothing to do with the death of old Jason Webb. Stone planned to take care of the two cases at once.

That evening he was with Herrick for some time before Bliss came. He told his plans frankly.

"You see, Herrick," he said, watching the face of his listener, "by the will, we have three months to hunt up the somewhat mythical young lady we want; but by police procedure, I am told we can count on about a month. I hope a fortnight will be enough for all. The police must be attended to first, because it is much more important to keep you alive than to get you married.

"Now, my plan is to send Bliss, as we agreed, let him see how things stand, attend the funeral, look into the matter of the missing granddaughter, and I will lay my wires for balking the mistaken police. Then Clarence will relieve me, look after you and the business, and do a few bits of sleuthing for me, and I will beard the lions in the Michigan den. All right by you?"

"Yes," Brand said, but with no brightening of his despondent face.

"I don't blame you, old chap, for not feeling gay, but I do wish you'd look a bit hopefuller. I tried to see three young men this afternoon, one of which I hope to make your successor in the tenancy of this room. But of the three I found only one at home, and he is far from a hopeful suspect. It was Delevan, and somehow I can't see him committing murder any more than I can see you. That leaves us with Haynes and Murray, and I am ready to say they are the most likely of the lot. The little I've heard of them is not entirely in their favor as good citizens."

"Murray, maybe," Brand said, wearily, "but not Van, I think."

"Don't think. Leave that to me for the present. And here comes Mr. Bliss."

Clarence came in, full of enthusiasm.

"Behold me," he said; "a brave adventurer, starting for Ebbitt's Corners, an unknown wild, where like as not there are men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders."

"Going tonight?" Brand said.

"Even so. By airplane."

"All right, my boy," said Stone. Now, what do you plan to do when you get there?"

Bliss became serious.

"What do you think of this schedule?" he said. "I'll leave New York at midnight, get to Detroit in the dawning of the morning. Go on to Lansing when the time serves, and lift The Corners at a civilized hour for seeing people."

TEST OF NAZI POWER LOOMING IN ARGENTINA

Attempt of President Ortiz To Return to Office Seen as Crisis.

(By Wide World)

WASHINGTON—The first big test of the Nazis ability to cripple the war effort of the United States by fomenting revolt in South America may be taking shape in Argentina.

A political crisis is on the horizon, centering on the eyes of the president-who-is-not-president of that country.

This is the story:

Dr. Ramon Castroviejo, New York eye specialist, has gone to Buenos Aires to see what treatment is necessary for the eyes of the titular chief of the Argentine republic, Robert Ortiz.

The eyes of Roberto Ortiz were the reason for his retirement from the presidency about two years ago.

In Ortiz' absence, the duties of the president have been exercised by Vice-president Ramon Castillo, whose administration adopted a policy of "neutrality toward all" in the war and was responsible for preventing a unanimous New World break with the Axis powers at the American foreign ministers conferences in Rio de Janeiro.

If Ortiz' ailment could be cured, there would be no legal reason why he should not return to the presidency.

And if Ortiz should return to the presidency, his friends have indicated he would comply with the popular demand within his country to break Argentina away from all connection with the Axis.

It is a political axiom in Buenos Aires, however, that in spite of his health, Ortiz would not have quit the presidency even temporarily had he had the support of the army.

At the time Ortiz retired from political life, former President Augustin Justo, a general with a large political following in the army, was against him. Justo previously had helped Ortiz become president, but they split on domestic issues. Today Justo, who wants to be president again, approves more of Ortiz' pro-Americanism than he does of Castillo's neutrality.

That leaves one crucial unknown factor:

How much of the historic German influence, flowing from German training and German-made weapons, is left in the Argentine army?

Some say this influence is strong. A few identify it as the real reason for Castillo's refusal to line up with the United States. Others aver that Nazi power is more propaganda than actuality.

Whatever the truth may be, Hitler can be depended on to use the influence to its fullest extent to prevent Argentina from joining the world-wide front against his "new order."

If the chances look strong enough, the Nazis will not hesitate to use violence. Observers fear they might use Ortiz' return to power as excuse for such an outbreak.

The possibility of Ortiz' return to the presidency was suggested when the Argentine congressional delegation which visited Washington last fall brought a personal message from Ortiz to President Roosevelt. Ortiz' son later visited the White House.

If Ortiz attempts a comeback, the world may expect to see how strong the Nazis stand. It will not be a pushover. Justo is against Hitler. So are some of the best brains of the Argentine army, who have seen the arms plants and the armies of the United States since Ortiz retired.

If signs of Ortiz' intentions in international affairs are being read aright, his return to office probably would be the Nazi's last real chance to call a showdown in South America short of armed invasion.

Have you ever thought how much a million dollars really is? Sure is an awful lot of nice things a fellow could do with a million dollars . . . if he had it. A million dollars is a lot of money.

Just think . . . it would take about three weeks, counting as fast as you could 24 hours a day, just to count up to a million.

I read in the paper the other day that the beer industry pays more than a million dollars a day in taxes . . . Federal, State and local. Every day . . . more than a million dollars.

I guess the government is glad to get that help these days, what with a war to win and pay for.

Of course, not all of that beer tax money goes to the Federal government. Quite a lot of it goes to the States and is used for such useful purposes as public health, emergency relief, old age assistance, education and public welfare.

Farmers surely ought to like the beer industry, too, from what I hear. Last year the brewers bought nearly two billion pounds of barley malt and nearly half a billion pounds of corn and corn products. And plenty of rice and hops, too. That's a lot of farm products.

Back around '33 and '34, when the tough old depression was hitting all of us pretty hard, farmers were certainly glad to sell those extra crops that beer bought from them. And come to think of it, when beer came back it made lots of new jobs for plenty of other people, too. City folks and country folks both.

If I hadn't gone in for this writing business, I think I'd like to have tried my hand at the brewing business.

I'd like to be making a fine tasting beverage that helps the public treasuries so much and that people can rightly call the "beverage of moderation." That moderation incidentally is another of the fine things about beer.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

I wouldn't know how many sports writers in this broad land have been writing these past two days about "my friend, fat Eddie Mead," since the famous fight manager was found dead in front of his hotel in New York, the victim of a "bum ticker."

But they must represent a good cross-section of this nation's sports scrivening fraternity. Fat Eddie was that kind of a guy. Meet him once, and you could very well call him, "my friend, Eddie Mead."

I met him three times, on the occasions of Henry Armstrong's three straight trips to Cleveland for the Cleveland News annual Christmas fund fight shows, and after the first time there was no need for further introductions.

Eddie Mead had a memory for a face and a name, although how anyone could forget the mug I am wearing around may pose a question at that. He'd have been a great politician, for it takes more of that "hale fellow, well met," business to get along in the scrap racket than most politicians own. And Eddie had it in abundance.

A sharp man with the percentage figures when lining up a fight, was Eddie, but as open-hearted as a book otherwise, and that's how he made such friends as George Raft and Al Jolson, who bought Henry Armstrong's contract and practically made a present of the document to Mead.

Yes, Jolson kicked eventually for his cut on Armstrong, whereupon Raft bought the entire sheet of paper and turned it over to Eddie.

I'll not forget the last time I saw Eddie Mead. It was in his hotel room on a Sunday night, the night before Armstrong's last fight in Cleveland.

Even though Eddie had a cold so bad he couldn't talk above a whisper, and "shoulda stood in bed," he insisted on getting up and acting the perfect host, even though he had to send a cab five miles for the wherewithal for entertainment.

Flat broke was Eddie, but sitting on top of the world nevertheless. For didn't he have with him his young bride, the glorious Gloria Youngblood? And wasn't his meal-ticket, Henry Armstrong, still the lightweight and welterweight champion of the world, and still going strong? What was the difference if he was out of the bucks temporarily? That was Eddie Mead.

I'm somewhat puzzled about the occupation of Eddie's widow, the beautiful Indian girl, Gloria Youngblood. Jimmy Doyle yesterday in the Plain Dealer said she was an actress, and we had a story on this page yesterday describing her as a Broadway singer.

When I knew her she was a golfer, a tennis player, a horse rider, a swimmer, and even, so I was told, a polo player. And, a veteran, so she said, of three unsuccessful elopements with Rudy Vallee.

Broadway singer? Euclid avenue taxi cab singer she was that night, as a bunch of us breezed away to a night spot. Crooning "South of the Border," all the way in from 105th. Accompanied by my barbershop baritone.

* * *

It must have been the soda. I don't know what else could have given me the idea I could sing in that company.

Service Teams Play at Chicago

CHICAGO —(AP)— The Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds meet here today in the first of a three-game series and a benefit contest for the Army and Navy Relief funds.

The game is billed as the nightcap of a doubleheader, with the Great Lakes Naval Training station nine and a team of soldiers from Camp Grant competing in the opener.

* * *

Rookie Hank Sauer replaced Frank McCormick at first base for the Reds. McCormick entered Christ hospital at Cincinnati yesterday afternoon for a rest and treatment of a muscular ailment in his back.

Bucky Walters was the Redlegs' probable pitcher against Paul Erickson.

Cardinal Chucker Clicks

Krist Chalks Up Tenth Straight Win in 2 Years.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

IT'S TIME someone introduced Howard (Spud) Krist to the major league public because his pitching record for the St. Louis Cardinals is one of the most remarkable in the big show—15 victories and one defeat spread over four seasons.

* * *

The tall righthander was overlooked last year when everybody was agog about Whit Wyatt, Kirby Higbe, Thornton Lee, the comeback of Lefty Gomez and the promise of Howie Pollet. But Krist won 10 games without a loss in 1941 and he has won two more without a setback this season.

* * *

Krist's specialty is relief and it was in this role that he earned his second success yesterday as the Cardinals curbed the Chicago Cubs 3-1 in ten innings. He took over in the ninth with two on and two out and promptly forced Olsen to pop to Shortstop Martin Marion. In the tenth Enos Slaughter and Coaker Triplett knocked in two St. Louis runs and Krist checked the Cubs although giving up a single and a walk.

In the day's only other National league game the Boston Braves retained their grip on second place by turning back the New York Giants 4-2 on the six-hit hurling of Al Javery.

The New York Yankees continued their domination of the American league by belting the Boston Red Sox 9-2 with a 13-hit assault while Atley Donald pitched six-hit ball. It was the world champions' 15th victory in their last 18 games and Boston's 11th loss in 15 contests.

The Bombers hit three home runs in one game for the first time this season and two of them, by Tom Henrich and Charley Keller, came in the first inning, each with a man on base. Frank Crosetti led off with one in the fifth.

* * *

Washington smeared the Philadelphia Athletics 8-3 as Steve Sundra kept 11 hits spaced and pitched carefully in the pinches.

A pair of streaks evaporated under the lights in the league's two night games.

Al Cleveland, Les Fleming punched out a ninth inning single that drove Jeff Heath and Buster Mills across the plate for the Tribe's first triumph in six starts. The score was 2 to 1.

The St. Louis Browns' four-fame victory stride was broken up by the Detroit Tigers, whose Al Benton allowed only four blows in the 3 to 1 struggle.

Publinksmen Get to Play

Eligible For Amateur In Spite of Blow-Off.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— A quick look at Ohio's 1942 amateur golf championship picture!

The O. G. A. state amateur, Maketewah Country club, Cincinnati, July 13 to 18:

Despite the big blowoff last year, when the O. G. A. and the State Publinks association severed diplomatic relations during the state tourney at Toledo Inverness, the "pay as you play" contingent will not be barred from competition this season.

* * *

T. Fred Reese, secretary of the Ohio Golf association, said today the state publinks champion and runner-up, and the ruler and second-placer in each district, would be "guests" of the O. G. A. at the amateur.

"The public links entries will be on a purely invitational basis," Reese said. "The public links players will not be required to pay an entry fee, and they may attend the annual banquet without charge. They will be eligible for championship flight play only, not for the lesser flights."

Women's Ohio State Golf association tournament, Columbus Country club, July 13-17:

Reports have been rampant that the match play tournament, won last year by Toledo's attractive Neoma Copic, had been cancelled—but Mrs. S. B. Kent of Cincinnati, executive secretary, says it isn't so.

* * *

"No move has been made to cancel the tournament," Mrs. Kent declared, "though there's a chance it will be called off if gasoline is rationed here. The girls just wouldn't go to a tournament on street cars."

TEE TIME SET FOR B-LEAGUE GOLFERS

Tee time for the News-Journal "B" golf league for tomorrow evening and the rest of the season has been set at 5:30 to 6 o'clock at Possum Run golf course.

Matches tomorrow evening are: Tinkey vs. Eagles; Moose vs. Mansfield Printing; Central Fruit vs. Bissman's; and Elks vs. Tucker Furniture.

P.G.A. Tourney Opens Today

Two Sammys, Byrd and Snead, Hold Spotlight.

ATLANTIC CITY —(AP)— Sixteen exhausting 36-hole matches were down for settlement today in the opening round of the Professional Golfers' association championship at the Sea View club.

Most of the interest was concentrated on one battle—Sammy Snead vs. Sammy Byrd.

Byrd is the fromer Yankee outfielder who quit the diamond to see if he could make a better living at golf. Though Snead was a logical choice to beat him today, there was nothing foregone about it at all. Byrd backers cited the ex-baseballer's two great qualifying rounds, 67-72.

* * *

Only one player out-shot Byrd the last two days. That was Harry Cooper, the Minneapolis veteran, who recaptured his wizardry of a half dozen years ago to score 67-71—138 and win the medal. The only other player to do as well as Byrd was Corp. Jim Turnesa. He, too, had a 67-72. Cooper's first round opponent was Mike Turnesa of Elmsford, while Corporal Jim met E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Camp Hill, Pa.

As for Snead, he steadied after his opening day's 73 and came in with a 71 yesterday, clipping a stroke off Sea View's par and finishing with a 34 on his second nine.

National Open Champion Craig Wood drew Rod Munday of Toledo, Ohio, as his first opponent. Byron Nelson, the pre-tournament favorite, figured not to be extended seriously by Harry Nettleblatt of Avon, Conn. Ben Hogan drew Ben Loving of Long Meadow, Mass

Racers Set for Ashland Event

Indianapolis Classic Veterans Entered.

ASHLAND — Speed kings, including three nationally renowned pilots who drove in last year's Memorial day 500-mile classic at Indianapolis and several sectional champions, will compete Decoration day afternoon on the Ashland county fairground's half-mile track in the seven event auto racing program.

The Indianapolis "Big Three" are Paul Russo of Kenosha, Wisc., ninth place finisher last year in the "500," former eastern AAA king and defending Ohio flat track champion; Iron Duke Nalon of Chicago, holder of several sectional titles; and Mel Hansen of Los Angeles, who garnered ninth place money in the 1940 grind at the Indianapolis brickyard. All three qualified for last year's 500-mile classic at better than 122 miles per hour.

Also on hand for the holiday competition on the Fairgrounds oval will be former world record holder and ex-Michigan champion Johnny Wohlfeil of Detroit, winner of the 1941 Milwaukee Memorial day 100-mile classic; the present Michigan champion Duane Carter of Los Angeles; Roy Sherman of Los Angeles; the defending Ohio point champion Elmo Green of Phoenix, Ariz.; Ohio's banked track king, Wild Bill Boyd of Steubenville. Bob Harnar of Akron, Mike Little Johnstown, Pa., Bob Heinze of Brunswick and Fibber Walters of Toledo, among the better known gas jockeys.

TUBE BEATS LOANS

SHELBY—Ohio Seamless Tube company, defending champions, defeated the Provident Loans, 9 to 4, Tuesday night in a Shelby Softball league game played at the Municipal Water company diamond.

Baseball Bigwigs Decide on Star Games

Meeting in Chicago to discuss problems raised by the war emergency and to fix the time for the league's two all-star baseball games, Presidents William Harridge of the American league, left, and Ford Frick of the National league, right, are shown with Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis. First of the two all-star games will be played in New York's Polo Grounds, Monday, July 6, starting at 5:30 p. m., EWT. The second will be played in Cleveland the following night at 9 o'clock, EWT.

Six Matches Rained Out

Flockenzier Shoots 35 But It Doesn't Count.

Six matches were rained out on the course yesterday evening in the News-Journal "A" golf league, and marked down as postponed, but ten were completed before the water fell.

Long Bar went into temporary lead in the loop standings with a 4-1 win over Quaker Market in the only complete team match.

Al Hager copped medal honors with a 35, one under par, and Joe Mayer hit even par.

Flick Flockenzier found the fates against him in his bid for medal honors. The rest of his foursome dashed for cover when the rain caught them on the fifth hole, but Flick went on around by himself for a 35, only to have a postponement chalked beside his name.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Fleming Wins One for Mel

Ninth Inning Single Brings in Two Runs.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Baseball's big wartime test may be the twilight all-star game here July 6. . . . If that doesn't draw a crowd, the ball clubs might as well figure on going on a week-end basis for the duration. . . . So far the customers have been turning out in great numbers on Sundays but even the army-navy relief games haven't pulled them in week-days except in Brooklyn. . . . Cleveland, out to beat the Dodgers' mark after a big newspaper buildup, drew only 7,959 last Monday and St. Louis did about the same. . . . Maybe this only proves that most folks are too busy working to win the war to take time off to see ball games, but it also proves there's a condition that the clubs will have to face. . . . P. S.: Did you notice the Dodgers and Phils played their twilight game in 1:28? . . . Apparently the way to make ball players hustle is to delay their dinners.

MATHEMATICS EXAM.

Fred Hunter, the Red Sox scout, reports that ball players in the Big Ten are getting entirely too good at figures since they heard about the bonus Dick Wakefield got for signing with the Tigers. . . . Recently one kid he approached demanded $15,000 for his signature and at the same time admitted he didn't know whether he could make the grade on the Sox Piedmont league farm. . . . Hunter asked how come, and the boy explained: "Well, the Detroit club gave Wakefield $45,000 and I think I'm a third as good a ball player as he is."

SPORTSMENTION.

Since Buck McCormick's consecutive game streak has been ended, the longest continuing string in the National league is Danny Litwhiler's 177 games. . . . Tommy Phillips, Berea (O.) high school grid star, has been approached by 42 colleges and one one suggested that he might have to work at something besides ball carrying.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Tommy Tucker, Cleveland News: "Shangri-La? Shucks, every baseball fan here knows where that is. It's the place from which Cleveland gets American league pennants."

Chicago also scored in the ninth. Myril Hoag singled, and Don Kolloway sacrificed. Both were safe when Hoag beat Jim Hegan's throw to second. Then Harder made a one-handed catch of Dario Lodigiani's pop bunt and doubled Hoag off second, but Kolloway stole second and scored as Bob Kennedy singled.

Harder allowed seven singles, struck out four and passed three. It was his third victory, against three defeats.

Smith, who took his seventh straight loss of the season, walked four, struck out three, and held the Tribe to six hits.

Ray Mack, hitting .216, was given a rest last night. Oscar Grimes started at second, but got no hits in three times at bat.

In today's final of the three-game series, Jim Bagby hurls for Cleveland against Johnny Humphries.

PROVIDENT LOANS HAVE BUSY SKED

Mansfield Provident Loan girls softball team has another busy week-end lined up, starting with Thursday evening's 7 o'clock tilt at North Lake park against the Ashland All-Stars.

Saturday night they return to Delaware for another game with Wilk's Meats, and Sunday at 3 o'clock they play the Elyria Frank's Bakery at North Lake.

Powermen Score Nine In Eighth

Ohio Public Service drove in nine runs in the eighth inning last night to snatch a softball league game out of the fire and score an 11-6 victory over Barnes Manufacturing.

Barnes played the eighth inning under protest because of the wet ball.

Hoosier Mentor Gets Toledo Job

TOLEDO —(U.P.)— The basketball fortunes of Toledo university next season will be guided by Burl Friddle, one of Indiana's most successful high school coaches.

* * *

Friddle resigned yesterday as coach at Fort Wayne's South Side high school to accept the Toledo position, in which he succeeds Harold Anderson, who brought national recognition to the Rockets.

* * *

Friddle will become head basketball coach and assistant football coach next September. He is a graduate of Franklin university. He coached at Washington, Ind., high school before going to Fort Wayne's South Side high, where his basketball team won the state title in 1938 and was runner-up on another occasion.

EDDIE COLLINS, JR. INDUCTED INTO NAVY

PHILADELPHIA —(INS)— Eddie Collins, jr., son of the A's former second baseman, has played his last game with the Mack nine for the duration. Collins, 26, will be inducted today as an ensign in the naval reserve at Arlington, Va.

THEATERS

Comedy Continues.

Abbott and Costello continue their foolery in "Rio Rita," the musical comedy with a spy twist at the Ohio. The picture showing through Friday presents the two zanies first as stowaways in a car bound from New York to Texas and then as house detectives in a hotel. In their latter roles they discover enemy radios tricked out to resemble apples. Kathryn Grayson and John Carroll furnish the romantic moments and the music includes many of the songs from the original production by the same name. Eros Volusia, the Brazilian dancer, is also featured.

Sparkling Film.

Andrew Jackson and other celebrated figures of the historic past come to the rescue of a modern day hero in the Madison attraction, "The Remarkable Andrew." Brian Donlevy in the role of Jackson and William Holden in that of the hero are supported by Ellen Drew and a cast of players including Montague Love and Frances Gifford. Holden appears as the bookkeeper of a small town purchasing department who is framed by a gang when he tries to expose their dirty work. "Born to Sing," the second picture, has Virginia Weidler and Ray McDonald.

Human Drama.

Roddy McDowall, the boy actor of "How Green Was My Valley," has the leading role in the Ritz attraction opening today, "On the Sunny Side," gives Roddy the part of a London lad who comes to America to live for the duration after being bombed out of his home. His coming creates complications in a family until human emotions are adjusted. Jane Darwell and Katherine Alexander are in the cast. Leon Janney and Eleanor Hunt appear in the second feature, "Stolen Paradise," dealing with the temptations of youth.

Hollywood Premier.

Local doubles for stage, screen and radio stars will appear at the Park theater tonight in a stage performance patterned after Hollywood premiers. Entitled, "Hollywood Premier of 1942," the production will introduce Mansfield talent after the "stars" are presented upon their arrival at the theater entrance. On the program will be dancers from the Ethel Batin studio. Miss Battin is not scheduled to appear, as was incorrectly anounced previously. The screen attraction, "To Be Or Not To Be," starring Carole Lombard and Jack Beny and a second feature. 'Sing Your Worries Away," with Bert Lahr will augment the bill.

Gas From Water?

Gasoline rationing has revived talk of the invention of John Andrews, who iin 1916 demonstrated to Navy officers a claimed method of transforming water into gasoline. Andrews has been discovered living near McKeesport, Pa. He told an interviewer that he believes he can work out the formula again. The government never has approached him further since the demonstration 26 years ago.

ONE GAME PLAYED IN MAD-A LEAGUE

SPRINGFIELD — (AP) — Erie, Canton and Springfield were tied today for third place in the Mid-Atlantic league with eight wins and nine losses each. Charleston still is on top, Zanesville second and Dayton occupies the cellar.

The Sailors downed Springfield 4 to 3 in the only game played last night. Weather forced postponement of the Canton - Dayton contest and stopped the Charleston-Zanesville game in the second inning.

TOURNEY SET

CHICAGO—(INS)—The Western Amateur Golf tournament will be played this year at the Manito Golf and Country club, Spokane, Wash., it was announced today by T. C. Butz, president of the Western Golf association. The dates are from July 7 to 12.

RULES FAVORITE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Though there wasn't much betting action yet, Sugar Ray Robinson today was a 2 to 1 favorite to make it 32 straight wins as a pro when he enters the ring against little Marty Servo of Schenectady in their return ten rounder at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

RATED 1-A

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The trainer of the Cincinnati Reds, Dr. Richard Rohde, is in line for a little training, it seems. Dr. Rohde was classified 1-A by his selective service board, making him eligible for immediate induction into the army.

GAMES POSTPONED

Weather gave the American association teams another day of rest yesterday, the fifth such vacation this month.

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

HOLDS LIKE A HAND

A CONCAVE PAD on a swivel holds rupture back in place. A crossbody pressure holding just like the hand. Impossible for rupture to enlarge IF you wear A DOBBS TRUSS. The proper control of a rupture is most important to your health. Every HERNIA sufferer should see this truss.

BULBS or any convex pad will cause opening to enlarge. Belts will retard circulation of the blood. Leg straps will bind.

We invite you to come in Thursday or Friday, May 28 or 29 and SEE THE DOBBS TRUSS. L. S. Dobbs will be here to give you a free try-on and demonstration.

JUDGE PUFFLE— By Gene Ahern

HEY, ROBIN,—YOU'D BETTER GET OUT THERE NOW AND CULTIVATE OUR VICTORY GARDEN! THE SOIL IS HARD AND THE WEEDS ARE TAKING COMMAND!
I CAN'T NOW, UNK!--I'M RUNNING THE BASES FOR AUNT CLARA ON ANOTHER JOB!--GOING OUT TO BUY CIGARETTES FOR THE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CANTEEN!
GET OUT AND HOE THE GARDEN, YOURSELF! AND LISTEN,---FOR A LITTLE TIN WHISTLE, YOU'RE DOING A LOT OF BIG TOOTING AROUND HERE!
LOOKS LIKE AUNT CLARA HAS THE UPPER HAND

NEW SUBSTITUTE

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.)— Chemists of U. S. Department of Agriculture's eastern regional laboratory near Chestnut Hill say they have developed by-products from apples which replace some of the uses of sugar.

These include a sugary syrup, good either on pancakes or in coffee, and a streamlined pectin which is expected to cut preserving sugar by 30 per cent or more.

CHEMICALS AND MOTORS DRAW STOCK BUYERS

Department Store Sales In Actual Decline Despite Dollar Increase.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Motors and chemicals attracted a modest buying interest in today's stock market dealings.

General Motors and Chrysler recorded fractional gains and Union Carbide moved up a point. Other improved spots included Goodrich and International Harvester. Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific fell back a little. Many leaders were unchanged from previous finals.

Holders of merchandising shares found interest in surveys indicating a further drop in retail trade from the high levels of two or three months ago.

The dollar volume of department store sales for May was estimated at only 3 per cent ahead of the same month last year. Since prices are now about 20 per cent higher it was figured the actual physical volume of sales ran well below the 1941 level.

Viewed as factors in the slower buying pace were the price ceilings fixed by the Office of Price Administration and the fact that much advance purchasing was done earlier against threats of price advances.

ROMMEL'S ARMY BEGINS ATTACK

Moves Toward British Posts In North Africa; U. S. Tanks Wait Battle.

divisions, when he last moved forward

During the recent lull the British have poured in reinforcements equal to those Rommel has obtained, and have been bolstered by armored divisions equipped with factory-new 28-ton American tanks, and the British armored divisions now are believed to be superior in armor, firepower and range

Involved in the general Mediterranean prospects, diplomatic quarters said were the massing of 300,000 Italian troops along the French border, Pierre Laval's discussions with French naval leaders, and a steady flow of supplies to Rommel as a result of Malta's recently-decreased usefulness as an air base

Reports from Turkey added that in midMay six infantry divisions had been transferred from Yugoslavia to Greece and the Aegean islands

Falls and Breaks Arm—Donald Werner, 11, son of Mr and Mrs Earnest Sands, received a fractured arm yesterday afternoon when he fell from a roof of his home, at 92 South Diamond street while trying to retrieve a ball He was treated at General hospital and released.

As he passed our Straw Hat window . . .

something seemed to hit him on the head

That is the effect these Straws have on other men and we know that you are as normal as the next customer

We have seen some of the boys drop their old hats like a hot poker the minute they try on one of our classy straws.
